CARNEGIE ON STAND TELLS STEEL STORY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—Andrew Carnegie, master of steel, to-day appeared as a witness under subpoena before the Stanley committee investigating the Steel Trust. Mr. Carnegie was subpoenaed after he had declined an invitation to appear on the ground that he was defendant in a government suit against the United States Steel Corporation. With his appearance on the stand the steel investigation was brought to its most interesting phase. He took the stand at 10:55.

In response to questions by Representative Stanley, he described his early life in the iron business and told of securing a loan of $15,000 during the time preceding the outbreak of the Civil War.

First Mill in 1863.

"In 1863," said the Iron master, "My partners and I built a mill in Pittsburg."

This mill, he said, was the beginning of the business which has grown to be an industry worth many millions.

The witness said that in 1864 the Superior Rail Mill was established, and in 1867 the two mills were consolidated into the locomotive works.

Mr. Stanley said: "Did you increase this business by selling stock in Wall street? Were your investors iron masters or capitalists? Did they invest money or experience?"

"Ah, great changes have taken place since then," said Mr. Carnegie. "I think my partners and I invested about $20,000 or $30,000 each. Their investments were not in the nature of speculations."

"What was the capital of your mills in the thirties?"

"I have no idea," replied Carnegie. "No more than you have."

"Well," replied Mr. Stanley, "I have an idea."

Mr. Carnegie smiled. "Don't let me guess. Give me time. I will give you all the information, but all this took place forty years ago."

"I am quite sure you will furnish the information," said Chairman Stanley.

Tells of Rise of Industry.

Then Mr. Carnegie took up the story of Steel. He told of the purchase of the early patents—the Bessemer process, the inventions of a man named Thomas.

"Later I was told of a successful experiment of using the Siemens-Bower open in the open hearth furnace," he said.

The experiment proved a success, and the open hearth furnace was adopted.

"Each monster open hearth furnaces were installed on each side of our plant, and open hearth steel was made at a slightly increased cost, brought $5 more a ton.

"Then we had something which has remained to this day unequalled—think of it!" he added, proudly. "Sixteen monster furnaces."

Partners Were Afraid.

He went on telling of the coming of natural gas and its effect on the operation of the plants. There was no interruption.

Mr. Carnegie having requested this, saying he was willing to be questioned later.

"When we went into steel and established the Edgar Thompson works, my partners were afraid to follow me. I got other partners, but the panic of 1873 struck. My partners failed.

"I had to buy up many of them out that I became controlling owner.

Mr. Stanley asked: "Was the Homestead plant was subsequently added?"

Mr. Carnegie: "Why, what do I guess? I give no guesses. Would you have the nation rely on results by guess?"

Mr. Stanley: "No, but whenever the capital was, was it the result of speculation—shares sold by you on the market?

Meant to Extend Industry.

Mr. Carnegie: "I do not think a share of stock was on the market. I did not buy steel on the profit of the iron industries. The iron business was taking up its own profits and I held to it before my partners gave me control of it," replied Carnegie.

"I was always quoting the Pennsylvania Railroad in those days," said Carnegie. "I used to say: 'I have known four unannounced millions to be made in a single day in railroads 500 miles away, and from there clipped back by public knowledge to Pittsburg and New York and Eastern points closer than the railroad would take it from Pittsburg.'"

NEGRO KILLS SHERIFF AND WOUNDS OTHERS

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Jan. 10.—Simon J. Birmingham, a deputy sheriff, was killed by William Cayman, a negro outlaw, shortly after noon to-day, and several others were wounded, among them two other deputies. Cayman had barricaded himself in his house after having killed, it is believed, his father and grandmother.

STRIKERS OFFER TO CARRY CARDINAL ON THEIR SHOULDERS

Cardinal O'Connell will come direct to Boston on the Canopic. The Longshoremen's Trade Council voted that if the strike is on when the Cardinal arrives enough skilled longshoremen will be sent to the wharf to handle the baggage of his eminence, and all the other passengers. This action was taken as a result of statements made by steamship agents to the effect that the Canopic would have to put in at New York on account of the strike in Boston.

"We will also send, if desired, announces the Council, "a sufficient number of men to carry him on their shoulders from the wharf, and if the strike is on at that time we will have 2,000 of our members in the line of his escort to his home."

BANDITS TAKEN AT HAVERHILL

HAVERHILL, Jan. 10.—Five officers and two bandits engaged in an exciting gun battle through the streets of the suburb of Georgetown early to-day. One of the men was captured in the postoffice which he entered after a desperate struggle in which several shots were fired. The other man was caught after a chase of a mile by two other policemen who were waiting for him.

The men ran into a back yard, where he held the officers at bay with a revolver. They finally closed in on him and after a short struggle overpowered him.

The men arrested were William McDonald of Vermont and John C. Claflin of Boston. Both men have served time in prison. When searched at the station house, revolvers, nitro-glycerine, fuses and caps were found.

Twenty-five shots were fired in all by both sides. None of the officers were hit although a bullet went through the hat of Captain Harry C. Hill of the Haverhill police.

James R. Wood of the Wood-Morgan Detective Agency has been working on the case for several weeks. Last night he learned that the two men were going to rob the postoffice. He notified the Haverhill police and the postoffice authorities.

Struggle in Dark.

Captain Hill, Inspector Robinson and Detective Wood went inside the postoffice while the other two men remained outside. The clock in the University Hall had just struck 2, when a scratching sound aroused Assistant Postmaster Cowell from behind a box. Captain Hill saw a man forcing one of the windows.

The postmaster was aroused in and made his way to the rear of the office, when the three men pounced upon him. Back and forth across the floor the men struggled. It was so dark that the officers were afraid to use their guns. Blows were struck.

The desperate was a powerful man and for a time it looked as though he would get away, but finally Captain Hill capped the handcuffs on him and the man collapsed on the floor.

In the meantime the two officers outside had been watching the second man. He shortly appeared around the corner of Hazel Heating Co. building and started to walk away, when the two officers closed in on him.

Chase fr a Mile

Drawing a repeating gun he opened fire at short range. None of the shots took effect, however, and the officers replied. A running fight ensued. The snap of revolver shots and the echo of the pursuers' feet broke the entire neighborhood. Others joined in the chase until fully fifty were trying to capture the man.

After running for nearly a mile the man doubled on his tracks and when the three officers who had been in the chase came running from the postoffice, they saw the bandit run by. Cooler heads prevailed, but the man did not stop and he finally disappeared through a back yard.

The captured men were taken to Haverhill. The police say that they are wanted in New York and Eastern points charged with the robbery of the Pittsburg mail from Pittsburg.

REPORT NANTUCKET LIGHTSHIP IS SAFE

Wireless reports received in Boston about noon to-day stated that the Nantucket lightship had broken from her moorings, but was proceeding under her own steam safely into Newport harbor. The revenue cutter Onekis started to assist the lightship until the late reports from Selectman and park commissioner. He is survived by his wife.

FIRST BOSTON PROPOSAL FOR THE LEAP YEAR

A Charlestown girl has made the first Boston proposal of this good leap year of 1912.

Blushing prettily, she told the AMERICAN Lovers' Editor to-day that she popped the question. By her side on the journey from the hall asked is she [illegible] Well, considering the circumstances, he considered the statement with a nod of the head.

The young couple are eighteen-year-old Katherine Brennan and George McNeil. Both live in Charlestown. Miss Brennan lives at No. 4 Tyrell Street place. But a short distance away, at No. 204 Moffet street, lives young Mcneil.

Mcneil is a longshoreman, and like all similar lads he has been out of employment. At the expiration of the strike, he says, they will be married.

You May Still Win $25.

But don't let this discourage you girls. You still have an opportunity to win the AMERICAN'S leap year prize. To the first couple that are married, the fortunate girl pays the ceremony, the prize of $25 offered by the AMERICAN will be awarded.

You can still win the prize. While Miss Brennan has got the start on you, girls by taking him hold of your courage and putting the question that has probably been trembling on the lips of your bashful swain you will be in the running.

The new marriage law that went into effect on the first of January, that all of five days before a marriage license will be issued.

You can steal a march on the one leap year couples by "leaping" to Nashua, N. H., or Portland, Me., where a marriage license can be obtained without delay.

Meanwhile Miss Brennan and Mr. Mcneil of Charlestown hold the leap year record.

Believes in Women's Rights.

Miss Brennan is a petite, demure little girl, young looking for her eighteen years. She believes in woman's rights and is suffrage for women.

"When George called on me last night," said Miss Brennan, looking shyly at Mcneil, "I had no intention of taking advantage of leap year and asking him to marry me.

"George has been calling on me for almost a year. I knew he liked me, and I liked him. But somehow I was bashful. And I didn't think he would get up his courage to propose to marry me.

"I have always been a woman suffrage. I think a woman can select a better husband for herself than a man can a wife. If girls only had more courage they would not, only in leap year, but many of them would save themselves from a lifelong existence of disillusionment.

"The AMERICAN'S offer of $25 to the first couple married was a splendid one. A leap year proposal occurred to me when George called.

"And as I knew that George loved me and I felt that money or no money I could get married, the thought of the prize got up my courage. So I determined to ask him.

"How does it feel to propose? Oh, it doesn't feel so much after you get started. Anyway, George told me later that if I hadn't proposed on New Year's Eve, I proposed anyhow, as soon as he worked his courage up to the point.

"I dislike all young girls who keep company with a man for years and then allow them to take advantage of leap year. If you like a man more than a man ever

EDMANDS AND LEE CONFER ON RICHESON

DR. LOTHROP DECLARES RICHESON IS WELL NOW AND HE MAY NOT VISIT HIM AGAIN.

vote is for expulsion, then the defendant is then and there expelled from the Baptist ministry.

The fourth method, by death, is not the way that the Baptist representatives now desire to have Richeson leave their church. The voluntary resignation is expected to solve the question for the church in the least embarrassing way.

Mr. Edmands signified his willingness to continue the fight for Richeson at a conference which he had with Attorneys John L. Lee and William A. Morse at the Parker House. Furthermore, Violet Edmands, who was to have become Richeson's wife on October 31, will do her utmost to save her former fiancee from the horrors and disgrace of the extreme penalty, as will her mother and sister Ruth.

Family Fight for Clemency.

Convinced of his guilt after he maimed himself, the Edmandses would not consent to appear in court as witnesses for him or the government, but they will do all in their power to bring about clemency and a modification of the court's decree to life imprisonment.

This was learned to-day by the AMERICAN on undisputed authority.

Miss Edmands and her father are reported to be ready to continue the campaign which in about six weeks will result in a formal petition to Governor Richeson to the Governor and council for commutation.

Lee Goes Home To-night.

Attorney Lee will leave Boston at 8 o'clock to-night for his home in Lynchburg, Va.

"I do not expect to return before five or six weeks," said he after his conference with Mr. Edmands to-day. "I have legal matters to attend to in the South. Investigations will be conducted meanwhile and you may state that we will petition the Governor for commutation."

"Will you first have your client examined by a staff of medical experts of your own selection?" asked a reporter.

"Now, young man, you are crowding me a little too close. I can't say anything just now."

"Richeson is a queer make-up," added Mr. Lee. "His mind is abnormal, in my opinion. Insanity, you know, has many forms. It would have been difficult and hazardous for us to attempt to prove his insanity in court. That is why we restrained from asking for the appointment of a lunacy commission, but the man is far from normal mentality."

Mr. Lee has previously authorized the statement in this paper that the commutation fight will be based upon a plea that Richeson is mentally irresponsible. His attorneys regard him as "periodically insane."

New Hunt for Evidence.

During the absence of Mr. Lee, Robert Burns, manager of the Burns Detective Bureau, No. 1 Beacon street, will turn the entire force loose on a widespread hunt for additional evidence concerning the mental status and eccentricities of the imprisoned preacher. Detectives will visit various parts of the country where Richeson lived.

In the meantime it is expected that outside interests will take up the fight independently to save the life of the condemned man, more to avert a blot on the church and Christianity than out of sympathy for the confessed murderer.

A volume of affidavits will be offered in support of the petition which Richeson's counsel intend to submit.

In political circles the matter of Richeson's life is looked upon as a matter not only relative to the growing opposition to the death penalty in Massachusetts, but so far as political careers are concerned.

Public Feeling Is High.

"This Richeson affair will make or mat political reputations," remarked an authority to-day. "As the situation shapes up, it looks as if Phelps might be saved, and if he is Richeson will have the chance he wants of staying within prison walls for a crime which he himself in his written confession characterized as "heinous."

It doesn't require very much sounding of public sentiment in official circles, on the rostrum, in shops and street corners, to realize that Massachusetts is on the eve of one of the most momentous commutation struggles in its history. It will mark an epoch. Public feeling is high.

If Richeson had been convicted even upon the most convincing evidence, which the prosecution had secured, and nothing else, there would have been doubt in certain circles, but with confession removed all this. There is no longer any question about his guilt.

Prosecutors Vindicated.

From his arrest until his confession the police authorities were deluged with letters, mostly of protest descending them for prosecuting an innocent clergyman. On this account the turn in the case is accepted as fortunate all round. It vindicates the government officials and convinces hundreds of emotional people that their sympathies were misplaced. As is invariably the case, a considerable portion of the community in their defence of the accused entirely overlooked the sinister and cunning manner in which Richeson snuffed out the life of a girl whom he had ruined and who stood in the way of his future prospects and marriage to an heiress to $500,000.

They forgot the final tryst, when a trusting girl of nineteen, buoyant and happy, lunched and strolled with him and even made plans to see him again; how she accepted with absolute confidence the deadly capsule which he pretended would bring relief and how she died in agony that evening while he was entertaining his prospective bride in Brookline. They forgot, too, the grief that descended upon the parents of the murdered girl in their cottage on the crossroads at Hyannisport.

Traced His Past Life.

If Richeson had gone to trial the government was prepared to lay bare his past. Aided by the police and detective facilities of the country, they had traced every step of the accused and had put together a career that would have astounded the young preacher's former parishioners and all other law-abiding people.

The prosecution was ready to establish a series of entanglements and affairs of the heart on the part of Richeson. It would have been shown that he had promised to marry other young women, and that at the time he was engaged to Violet Edmands and Avis Linnell he was engaged to a young woman who is now living in Denver, Col.

"It is true," said Assistant District Attorney Lavelle to-day, "that Avis Linnell wore a plain gold ring on the third finger of her left hand. The government looked upon it as a wedding ring, but we were unable to find any records of a marriage.

Found Plenty of Motive.

"The government found abundant motive in Richeson's case, but in addition to the other evidence, if he were really her husband by secret marriage, naturally his object in killing her would be stronger. The prosecution is done with his case now, unless some development occurs which might warrant the District Attorney offering any evidence or statement to the Governor."

Richeson was reported to-day to be in a state of collapse in his cell at Charles street jail. This is denied by Dr. Howard A. Lothrop, the surgeon who has been in daily attendance upon Richeson since the latter mutilated himself. Dr. Lothrop said Richeson is comfortable, so much so that to-day's visit to the patient may be the final one for Dr. Lothrop. The surgeon said:

"Richeson on his return from court yesterday was somewhat nervous and unstrung, which was to be expected under the circumstances. However, he calmed during the evening and passed a very comfortable and restful night and this morning was as well as he was before he went to court.

"When the surgeon was asked whether or not the prisoner had suffered from a collapse or a breakdown last night, he replied:

"No, he did not. To-day, he is as well physically as he ever was.

"My visits to him will in all probability cease to-day, although I might come down more. You see I was only called in for the surgical treatment of the case, and only in that capacity have I treated him. In spite of the statements made that he would be unable to appear in court on the 15th of the month, he appeared one week earlier and went through the ordeal better than most men would have. He underwent a very serious operation, but

THE REAL CLARENCE RICHESON.

This sketch, made in the courtroom by William Stevens of the AMERICAN staff, shows the convicted murderer as he is now—not the suave, well-knit, aristocratic minister, but the haunted criminal, wrecked in body and mind by physical agony and mental torture.

Minister's Former Fiancee's Father Meets Virginia Lawyer at Parker's.

Much praise is due Dr. Lothrop, the jail attendants say, for the manner in which he handled the case. When Richeson attacked himself it was thought that he would not be able to appear in court on January 15, the date originally set for his trial, but Lothrop exercised all his professional energy to the case, with the result that the prisoner was brought into court one week before the time set.

It was learned to-day that Avis Linnell was buried in peaceful Hyannis Centetery with a wedding ring on the third finger of her left hand. This information comes from an official in the office of District Attorney Pelletier.

The question has often been raised, in the most fiendish manner, with the most pathetic tragedy of our New England life, whether Avis Linnell was or was not the wife of the Rev. Clarence V. T. Richeson. That the trusting girl considered herself his wife and his only is now apparent. It is also plain that there may have been a ceremony, enough to satisfy the girl at least. Whether correct or not, the fact remains that when she was laid to rest a plain band of gold was placed on her bridal finger—pathetic, material evidence of that sacred position she should have been given before the playing world.

A controversy that will undoubtedly divide all New England was opened as the final words of Judge Sanderson, "and may God, in his infinite goodness, have mercy on your soul," fell on the ears of the doomed minister and the court room was jammed the little court room.

Seven minutes were required their attitude on the question of commuting the pastor's sentence to life imprisonment. Some take one side, some another.

"He is guilty, and he die," they some.

"The execution, even of a murderer, is a crime. Let him expiate his sins by a life in prison," say others.

All New England took a personal interest in the fate of Charles L. Tucker, who died for the murder of Mabel Page, in Weston. Governor Foss, State officials, ministers—all took a hand in the discussion.

Every man condemned to death has friends who urge the commutation of his sentence.

But the fate of Clarence V. T. Richeson will be hotly discussed throughout the United States.

The fate of two men is before the Governor's Council. Whether Silas W. Phelps shall pay the penalty for his murder of a deputy sheriff, up in Monroe County, will be discussed to-day when the new Council convenes. And within a short time, a petition for the commutation of Richeson's sentence will be presented to the Governor. He has stated that he will leave the matter to the Council.

Contrast in Cases.

Phelps is an ignorant mountaineer, guilty of a crime committed in hot blood—when he was pursued by those who sought to imprison him for stabbing a man in a quarrel.

Richeson planned his act in advance, and for pills which he bought under pretence of doing a friendly act.

If Richeson's life is spared capital punishment will have ended in Massachusetts.

Here are some of the reasons that have been and will be urged by those who favor the commutation of the minister's sentence:

First—His confession.

Second—His sanity.

Third—The torture he has already suffered.

Fourth—The impropriety of capital punishment.

By confessing to the crime charged against him, Richeson did the county a service that will be reckoned in terms of money. Estimates of the probable cost of his trial have run high as $10,000. Aside from the money cost, he did the commonwealth a service by enlisting forever all dispute as to his guilt.

No matter how conclusive the evidence of his crime, presented at his trial, had been, there would have been hundreds who still believed him innocent.

There is a question of Richeson's sanity on many counts. It is said that there is a strain of blood in him which brings a morbid streak in his nature. Acts which are not those of a sane man—that no punishment would deter him. His attorney, John L. Lee, has said that no sane man would take the cyanide, as Richeson did, from an intimate personal friend. And finally, many believe that only a madman could have mutilated himself as Richeson did, in his cell in the Charles Street Jail.

Some argue that Richeson has already been terribly punished, and that life imprisonment would be more than even the balances toward the side of law and justice. And in the matter's consequence, as he entered the court room to receive his sentence, there is something to support their claim.

The hearty, well-groomed man whom the public knows remember, and the pale, aged, haggard man, who faced the Court and heard sentence of death pronounced on himself, look little like the same man.

Battle Before Council.

The torture of the wound which he, driven by remorse and loathing, inflicted on himself, combined with the mental agony of the weeks in which he has fought off the accusing spirits that fancy conjured out of the air before his eyes, and finally, say those who would commute the doomed man's sentence, capital punishment is wrong in itself, and should be ended.

Along those lines the battle for Richeson's life will be fought out with the Governor and his Council of nine men, as the final arbiters of his fate.

District Attorney Pelletier, while he will probably not take an active part in the opposition to the commutation of Richeson's sentence, he expects to strongly favor execution.

When the minister's fate is up for discussion before the Council, the District Attorney will be called to tell the State's side of the case. The District Attorney stated in court, or just before Richeson was sentenced, that, in his opinion, the evidence amply warrants a first degree verdict.

"I wish to state, if it be proper for me to do so," he said, "that it is my honest opinion that the evidence which the Commonwealth has prepared in this case is such as would convince any ordinary jury of the defendant's guilt, and would result in a verdict of murder in the first degree."

From his action it may be inferred that he will oppose first commutation of the sentence by the Governor's Council.

That Avis Linnell was married to Richeson is the conviction of many in closest touch with the case.

An assistant district attorney is quoted as having said:

"When we disinterred the body of Avis Linnell, there was a wedding ring on the left hand. We first planned to take it off and keep it as an exhibit at the trial. This was not done, however. Instead, competent witnesses were shown the ring so that they might be able to testify to its presence there at the trial, and it was then replaced and re-interred with the body."

The belief that Avis Linnell was, or believed herself to be, married to Richeson, is strengthened by statements of Attorney Lee, and also by words in his own written confession.

Attorney Lee has said repeatedly, since the confession was made public, "Richeson confessed largely because he wished to clear the memory of Avis Linnell. It was solicitude for her that prompted his act. To a very great degree."

The "woman of mystery" so-called, whose fashionable attire and pretty face attracted attention and stirred conjecture at the arraignment of Richeson yesterday, was a young newspaper woman from New York, according to reports at the court house to-day. Other rumors were to the effect that she was a former sweetheart of Richeson. She sat near Court Crier Paine's desk on the left of the court chamber while Richeson heard his doom.

ROXBURY GIRL SUES JAPANESE

The first suit for breach of promise ever brought in Boston by a white girl against a Japanese will be heard in the Suffolk County Court Friday in the case of Helen T. Cochran, a pretty twenty-four-year-old Roxbury girl, who asks $10,000 damages of Chiro Tahaka, a wealthy Japanese merchant, formerly proprietor of a Japanese goods store at No. 158 Boylston street. The girl also asks $5,000 damages, and her father sues the Japanese for $10,000.

Tahaka is reported to be worth $75,000. He is now locked up in the Charles street jail, as he had planned to sail for Japan about the time the suits were filed.

Tahaka, through his attorney, Francis M. Carroll, will ask that the suits be dismissed on the ground that they are blackmail. Mr. Carroll describes the jilting of his client as oppressive.

Miss Cochrane and her father, John H. Cochrane, are represented by Attorney James H. Valley.

Tahaka's attorney says Tahaka lived with the Cochran family. The Japanese, Attorney Carroll says, pays a visit to Japan each year and was to sail shortly. He says the suit results from a futile attempt upon the part of the Cochrans to coerce Tahaka into a settlement.

Tahaka recently sold his store on Boylston street to Chiunfuis Shikawa, another Japanese. Two months ago one of Tahaka's were attached for $2,500.

Fair Skaters Protest Against Annoying "Flirts"

Police Are to Be Appealed to in Effort to Stop Objectionable Practice on All Ponds.

Come on, the skating's fine! Yes, it's great, perfectly dandy, but—well, the skating is great, but the "masters" spoil it.

At least that's what the young women who go out in crowds without male escorts declared. They go to the afternoons and some times stay into the evening, enjoying the glass-like surface which covers every pond these freezing days, but they say, what's the use in all that nice ice when they are constantly annoyed by men who want to flirt with them.

But as these annoyed young damsels glide so gracefully about the field, their fair cheeks glowing, their eyes sparkling and their happy laughter ringing through the air—well, you can hardly blame the so-called men for admiring them. But the girls declare they're a nuisance, and give them not a moment's peace, so the police are to be appealed to, and then there'll be something doing for the "smashers."

Franklin Field, which is alive with fair skaters just now, the frog pond, in the Fenway and in fact every place where skating is to congregate are infested with annoying flirts and the young women are about to register a strong protest.

At the Country Club in Brookline and the Arena where the society girls go each day are about the only places free from these objectionable characters and there's the reason why all the other places shouldn't be just as free and everybody allowed to enjoy the exhilarating exercise to the fullest.

WOMAN SCORES HARVARD ACTION

Mrs. Mary Page, one of the leaders of the Equal Suffrage party in Massachusetts, to-day denounced as an injustice, both to the students and to the general public, not to mention the suffragists, the ruling of the Harvard Corporation that hereafter no women will be allowed to lecture in the halls of the college, to the students, on any subject, except on special invitation of the corporation itself.

"If the Harvard Corporation is discriminating in this fashion against women," said Mrs. Page, "it is a rank injustice to the students, to the suffragists and to the people as a whole."

The vote of the corporation is designed to obviate the possibility of such public squabbles as arose last Fall when the Harvard Equal Suffrage League sought to have Mrs. Pankhurst, the English suffragist, speak to the students in one of the college halls. Permission to use any of the halls was refused, and Mrs. Pankhurst finally was forced to appear in an outside auditorium, where so many students thronged to hear her that the very window ledges were jammed with them.

"I can hardly believe this," said Mrs. Page to-day. "I should wish to be absolutely sure that the corporation has voted as stated before I made any statement. If it is true that such a vote has been passed discriminating against women instead of including both men and women, I should consider it a rank injustice.

"Of course, the corporation has a perfect right to vote as it sees fit. Nevertheless, justice be on our side when we protest against such an unfair course of procedure.

"I shall prepare a formal statement on the matter to give to the newspapers."

COLUMBUS DAY NURSERY MEETING

At the annual election of officers of the Columbus Day Nursery on West Fourth street, South Boston, the following officers were elected: President, H. W. Wood; secretary, Philip McManus; treasurer, Peter W. Wells. The society was formed by the seven ages by the Knights of Columbus, but not only cared for children, but has found employment for women, as well as supplying food and clothing for the poor. During the past year 387 destitute families have been assisted.

HATTIE LE BLANC TO WED MONDAY

Hattie Le Blanc, the eighteen-year-old French Acadian girl who was acquitted a year ago on the charge of murdering Clarence E. Glover, the Waltham laundryman, is to be married next Monday at her home in West Acton. C. H. according to a message received by the Boston AMERICAN to-day from that place.

Philip Lavoie, the groom-to-be, is a former Boston boy, now living in Sydney, N. S., who fell in love with Miss Le Blanc during the East Cambridge trial.

The marriage is to take place in the village church, with Rev. J. Edward Robitaille, the parish priest, officiating. The couple will go to Sydney to live.

Hattie's sister Lillian recently married Walter Sampson, a young man who fell in love with her in the courtroom at East Cambridge.

Lavoie was among the thousands who sympathized with Hattie, and after her return home he paid her ardent court. Their engagement was announced several weeks ago.

SOCIETY BOXERS IN CHURCH RING

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 10.—Five young men, including millionaires and professional pugilists, stripped to the waist for a progressive polo tournament in the Abigail Vare Memorial Church, of which the pastor is Rev. Thomas A. Davis, the "baseball parson."

Those who took part in the encounter, lasting more than an hour, were A. J. Drexel Biddle, "Philadelphia Jack" O'Brien, Danny Hutchinson, the Pennsylvania football player; Frank Flood, society man, and Bryan Hayes, former amateur welterweight champion.

Each contestant faced each of the other four participants, fighting three rounds, without every one of the six found twelve rounds.

The bout was held in the basement of the church, which had been fitted up as a gymnasium, and the bout was in celebration of its completion.

There were more than $25,000,000 represented among the spectators, all of which contributed most generously to the new church gym.

TOWN STIRRED BY ATTACK ON FIREMEN

MIDDLEBORO, Jan. 10.—The Middleboro fire department is one the hottest fire in its history, and to-day the whole length and breadth of this town discussed the resignation of Chief C. W. Kingman, head of the department for the past seven teen years. The trouble started with cussthe criticisms at room meeting of the department on the ground that it might have too many old men. The attack on the department came after a report was made advising the use of motor-driven apparatus instead of the old-style volunteer service with the engines being pulled by men. Engineer Marshall urged that more up-to-date methods would result in a great saving in fire losses to the town. There was animated discussion and Chief Kingman resigned. A committee of nine, appointed to investigate the needs of the department, will report on March 12.

FUND REACHES $87,342.

Twenty days still remain for the Franklin Square House canvass, and $12,658 are still needed. Dr. Perrin, the president, reports additional pledges of $2,000 for the last four days, bringing the total up to $87,342.

MANUEL'S FAVORITE TO WED NOBLEMAN

LONDON, Jan. 10.—Word was received here to-day from Paris of the announcement there of Miss Gabrielle Ray's engagement to Drc Louder, son of the late Alfred Louder and grandson of Sir Edmund Louder. Gabrielle Ray has for some time shared honors with Lily Elsie, now Mrs. John Bullough, as a typical English beauty, and, like Miss Elsie, her field of success has been that of musical comedy. Miss Elsie, Miss Ray has been the object of marked attention that exceedingly susceptible ex monarch, Manuel of Portugal.

WANT ITALIAN FLAG PROTECTED

The Italian-American Citizens' Progressive League of Massachusetts has prepared a bill asking the Legislature to urge upon Congress a resolve that will effectually protecting any flag of any nation other than that of the United States be punished by a heavy fine or imprisonment. At the present time an insult to the American flag is punishable, but an insult in the United States to any other nation's flag is not punishable except in the case of defaming another's property.

$27,500 FOR COPY OF GUTENBERG BIBLE

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—A paper copy of the famous Gutenberg or "42 lines Bible," has been sold for $27,500 to Bernard Quaritch, at the sale of the Hoe library in the Anderson gallery. This price is considered unusually high. While it is true that the Hoe copy, sold in 1908, was recently, brought $29,000, its superiority over the Hoe copy is so great that the difference in prices is thy beside it.

SIR PURDON CLARKE'S BROTHER A LABORER

TELLS OF HARM IN 'BUNDLING UP'

By MARTHA WINTHROP.

Girls, you can wear your light dresses this cold weather. It is perfectly healthful for you to wear them.

You may shiver for a time, but when your capillary blood vessels get working with pure air and exhaling carbonic acid and absorbing oxygen, then you need bundle up for a nice set of routine.

Mothers, do not get upset because your daughters do not bundle up this cold weather. Let them get all the air they can by wearing light clothing.

More men get pneumonia than women, because they are always bundling up.

These opinions are urged by Dr. Charles E. Page of the Health School, Tremont street, who goes all Winter with little clothing and fights cold through his blood vessels, keeping them in such good condition that they are in constant touch with Jack Frost and have always gone our ahead.

Calls a Cold Filth.

"Young women," says Dr. Page, "do not be afraid of taking cold. Go in your light silk dresses, which you are wearing to parties this Winter. Do not let mother bundle you up and coddle you into the idea that you must take cold if you let pork yourself with clothes.

Dr. Page believes that a cold is filth, and that the best way to fight against a cold is to keep the millions upon millions of capillary blood vessels in close communion with pure air.

"Do you know that six or seven men have pneumonia to one woman? I will tell you the reason for this. You go along Washington street or any other of our thoroughfares and you will see that the average man is more coddled with clothes than the average woman.

"Did you ever notice this? Now this means something. It means that the capillary blood vessels have been more of an opportunity to act in a woman than in a man. The capillaries there in contact with the pure air and are forever exercising carbonic acid and absorbing oxygen.

"Oxygen is a great scavenger and cleanser of the vital economy.

"Men bundle up, smother the skin and bring on the very disease they hope to prevent.

"Every one knows that we would have no colds if we would think more of the kind of clothing that we pile upon ourselves.

Danger in Overwarm Rooms.

"Colds result from close and overwarm rooms, and you would think that women staying indoors so much as they do, would easily take cold when they go out. In reality they do not because they are dressed more reasonably than the men.

"When we do take cold, it is ridding our bodies of disease, and it is a man going to coddle himself after he has a cold. That's what brings on pneumonia.

"Man is by nature a naked animal, a truth we are reminded of in 'Sartor Resartus' for a thousand. In fact, he would be better off if we were drapery instead of many times our present clothing.

"Would you like to have a flannel bag over your head so that you could hardly breathe? This is analogous to the way we overload the body with clothing, and think that because we have much on we will be more comfortable.

"We have got to learn right here in this New England climate that the skin can change a great deal quicker than the weather.

"So let the girls out on their white dresses and go out in them. They may shiver for a thousand times after a time, when the millions of capillary blood vessels get the close communion with pure air, exerting carbonic acid and are absorbing oxygen, they will be all right.

"You should have no fear of catching cold. It is not the first things on a cold, but if fear leads a man to bundle or coddle up, then look out."

Wives Can Preserve Joys of Courtship

("Aunt Ruth" in Woman's Realm.)

"Every married woman should pay the same attention to her personal appearance that she did in her sweetheart days. Men admire well kept hair. Yours will be made light, fluffy and beautifully lustrous by dry shampooing, which is far better than soap and water. Put a cupful of corn meal in a fruit jar, add the contents of a small egg, original package of there, and shake well together. Just sprinkle a little on the head and brush thoroughly through the hair.

"Use face powder sparingly, if at all. To keep the skin soft and lovely and prevent growth of hair, gently massage the face, neck and arms with a solution made by dissolving an original package of unyatone in half a pint of witch hazel.

"Mothers often lose their good looks through worry over having 'creepy' children, or if they suffer from colds and catarrh, use Mother's Salve. You should have it ready for accidents, you know, for it is truly wonderful healer of cuts, burns, sores, sprains, pains and aches."

FRANCE TO BAR THE DUNCANS

PARIS, Jan. 10.—The anti-scant dress movement now sweeping over France has struck Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Duncan and their guests so badly that they are being prosecuted, and will be evicted next week.

Raymond Duncan is the Californian brother of Isadora, of Greek dance fame, and is the husband of a beautiful Greek, whom he married in Athens six years ago. The move of protest began at Nice, where a Paris danseuse, appearing in a piece by Pierre Louis, author of the classical romance "Aphrodite" is being prosecuted against by the Public Prosecutor. Then detectives put a watch on Isadora Duncan, and now, brother Raymond and his companions are under fire.

Duncan and his guests live in a house in the Avenue Charles Floquette which was let him by Marc Stargier.

Notwithstanding the bad weather—and it is so cold that a man died of congestion to-day in the Rue De Rivoli—Duncan and companion wear sandals, go hatless, bare-armed, bare-legged and are clothed only in a tunic. All wear long hair, tied with a Grecian band.

The other tenants lodged a complaint with the landlord, who asked the court to give an order for the Duncans' immediate expulsion. The tenants also complain that they are kept awake by Doric music played on the lyre every night by Duncan.

To the AMERICA'S correspondent, Duncan said: "I have kept the costume which I wore in the mountains of Greece when I studied ancient dances there. It is decent and conventional. Landlords have no right to dictate what I shall wear. I have met their wives with faces smeared with powder and their daughter almost strangled with corsets. Compare my costume with theirs and see who is right."

CARNEGIE GIVES TO HALE FUND

Andrew Carnegie and John B. Rockefeller lead the list of subscribers to the fund for the erection of a statue in Boston to the memory of the late Rev. Dr. Edward Everett Hale, the famous author and clergyman. Andrew Carnegie and John D. Rockefeller each subscribe $1,000. J. Pierpont Morgan gives $2500. Edwin F. Atkins of the American Sugar Refining Company, gives $250, and the list of contributors contains the names of many persons well known. Helen C. Butler sends her check for $250, while George E. Adams gives $500. The fund is growing daily, and the bronze group from Kidder, Peabody & Co. places it at $25,508.03.

LUCE TO SPEAK AT THE Y. M. C. A.

DO YOU GET UP WITH LAME BACK?

Have You Rheumatism, Kidney, Liver or Bladder Trouble?

Pain or dull ache in the back is evidence of kidney trouble. It is Nature's timely warning to show you that the track of health is not clear.

Danger Signals.

If these danger signals are unheeded more serious results follow. Bright's disease, which is the worst form of kidney trouble, may steal upon you.

The mild and immediate effect of Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest for its remarkable curative effect in the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine, you should have the best.

Lame Back.

Lame back is only one of many symptoms of kidney trouble. Other symptoms showing that you need Swamp-Root are, being obliged to pass water often during the day and to get up many times during the night.

Inability to hold urine, smarting in passing, uric acid, headache, dizziness, indigestion, sleeplessness, nervousness, sometimes the heart acts badly, rheumatism, bloating, lack of ambition, may be but of feeble, sallow complexion.

Prevalency of Kidney Disease.

Most people do not realize the alarming increase and remarkable prevalency of kidney disease. While kidney diseases are the most common diseases that prevail, they are almost the last recognized by patient and physicians, who readily content themselves with doctoring the effects, while the original disease constantly undermines the system.

The manufacturer sells them regularly at $2.00 per dozen, and the retail price of $3.00 is pretty well established. We shall, however, refund the money on any one of these clocks that does not prove entirely satisfactory, and the clock may be returned with the check. Purchase quickly, as at this price we will have a chance to sell this clock for less than the manufacturer's cost. Had the weather been normal these clocks would have all been sold the first three days.

LAST CHANCE FOR THAT MINCE PIE RECIPE PRIZE

It's nearly time to close the mince pie contest, and the Board of Judges has been selected. May Irwin heads the list.

May Irwin, in addition to being a clever actress, is the author of a celebrated cook book. Now, there are lots of experts on eating mince pie, especially here in the New England pie belt. But the real kind of an expert, qualified to judge on the AMERICAN'S contest, must be an expert on making mince pies, too.

Just as soon as you hear May Irwin talk about mince pies you know that she is an expert, all right. She refers carelessly to the different kinds of mince pie, and the little technical differences between mother's mince meat, and others' mince meat, and puff paste, with the same easy grace that a chauffeur refers to carburetters and sparking plugs and all that kind of talk.

May Irwin's Recipe.

The AMERICAN is holding a contest to decide on the best method of making mince pie. There is a prize of $5 for the recipe which the judges decide to be the best. And there are five other prizes of $1 each for the next five best. If you haven't already sent in your own pet particular recipe, send it at once to the Mince Pie Editor, Boston AMERICAN, Boston.

Here is May Irwin's recipe for making mother's mince meat:

Nine pounds of lean beef, 3 pounds of suet, 6 pounds of raisins (weighed after they have been seeded), 6 pounds of currants, 6 pounds citron (cut into small pieces), 6 teaspoons of powdered cloves, 6 teaspoons of cinnamon, 1½ teaspoons of mace, 4 tablespoons of salt, 2 quarts of the best French brandy, 2 pints of sweet cider.

Boil the beef until tender; when cold, chop very fine. Chop the suet almost to a powder; mixing all well together. Put the beef and suet into an old-fashioned stone crock; then add the raisins, currants, citron, cloves, cinnamon and mace. Boil the cider, with six pounds of brown sugar, down to about one-half the original quantity. When cool, put it and brandy in the crock and get a few good, strong pots to suit thoroughly. Now cover it up, so they won't get it until the appointed time. When you are ready to make the pies, procure and chop fine some more apples, brown sugar to taste, and hot sweet cider, enough to make them juicy. Mix and warm the ingredients before putting into pies.

How to Make Puff Paste.

Puff paste should be used for these, for which a recipe follows:

To 1 pound of butter allow 1 pound of flour. Mix the flour into a paste with cold water, roll it out, and put three ounces of the butter over it in small pieces. Dredge flour over it all and put in refrigerator for one hour, then roll it out again; use 4 more ounces of the butter in small pieces, dredge the flour over it, roll it up again and put in ice chest for an hour, and so on until the butter is used. Bake puff paste always in a hot oven.

Here are some of the latest recipes: Take three pounds of lean beef; let it cook until very tender then chop fine, add two and one-half cups of cooking liquor to every cup of meat, one pound of seedless raisins, one pound of currants, one half pound of orange or lemon peel, three tablespoons of cinnamon, one tablespoon of clove, two cupfuls of molasses, two cupfuls of brown sugar, one bottle of brandy, vinegar to taste, one pound of suet. Mix all with meat liquor and let stand over night. In the morning roast for two hours. Will keep all Winter until late in Spring.

MRS. ALFRED GAITHER, JR.
P. O. Box 16, Linwood.

One cup of cooked meat, chopped fine, two cups of chopped apple, one teaspoon each of salt, allspice and cinnamon, one cup brown sugar, half cup each of chopped and small whole raisins, half a cup currants. Moisten with one cup of cider or one cup of weak pickle vinegar, or half a cup water and piece of cne lemon.

MRS. JOHN LOCKLIN.
Marlboro.

Quart of corned beef chopped, 2 quarts of apple chopped, one quart of sugar, one quart of cider, one half tumbler of any kind of jelly, one half pound butter, two teaspoons each of cinnamon and allspice, half teaspoon pepper, one whole nutmeg grated, two teaspoons lemon, one pound currants, one half pound citron cut in thin slices, salt to taste; if not moist enough add the water in which the meat was cooked to make it about right; cook one hour; this makes about one gallon.

MRS. J. W. FRAZER, RESCUED BY LADDER IN SOUTH END FIRE

THREE SAVED AT SOUTH END FIRE

Mrs. John W. Frazier was taken down a ladder by a citizen at a fire today in the five-story building at the corner of Shawmut avenue and Milton street. Mrs. John Peterson ran through the smoke with her three-year-old son and Chester Lambert dragged his aged father to safety from the fourth floor.

Mrs. Frazier was scantily clad and suffered severely from the cold while she was in her bare feet to the home of a neighbor.

The fire started from an overheated stove in the laundry of Yong Lung on the first floor and worked rapidly up through the walls, while dense smoke poured up the winding stairway.

Mrs. Frazier, whose husband was at work, awoke to find a citizen shouting to her of her peril. As the firemen raised ladders to the window of her room on the third floor, the man, who refused to give his name, started down the ladder with her in his arms.

Son Rescues Aged Father.

Mrs. Chester Lambert sneezed in her room on the fourth floor in an endeavor to save some insurance papers, and her husband had to guide her down the stairs. Limbert's father, Hiram, who is seventy-seven, would have been overcome by smoke but for his son's courage. Mrs. Hiram Lambert's parrot, escaped without help. The family's canary was found afterward suffocated.

Firemen extinguished the blaze in half an hour, with a loss of $500.

BROTHERS, SHAKE HANDS, WE WERE RIGHT! Now comes Lady Duff-Gordon ("Lucile"), and, writing for the Boston Sunday AMERICAN, says: "Our skirts have certainly been a bit too tight." By Spring she thinks "we will see the happy medium, the natural skirt—neither too tight to impede the wearer's movements, nor to be a bit vulgar, nor too full to be cumbersome." In the Sunday AMERICAN, remember.

$100,000 CHICAGO FIRE.

CHICAGO, Jan. 10.—More than 400 persons were thrown into a panic early today by a fire which practically destroyed the four-story warehouse of the Creamery Package Manufacturing Company, Nos. 67-67 West Kinzie street, with a loss of $100,000. The roof of the Northland Hotel, No. 345 North Clark street, where more than 200 men reside, caught fire.

DATE SET FOR BOLDUC TRIAL

The cases of Annie M. Reed and Mary A. O'Neil, who have been indicted as principals, and Dr. John Ferguson, Jennie B. Shattuck, Hattie M. Hazlett, indicted as accessories both before and after the fact, in connection with the death of Marie A. Bolduc, has been assigned for trial on January 15 before Judge Chase in the First Session of the Suffolk County Superior Court.

On December 22, the partly dismembered body of Miss Marie A. Bolduc, a pretty twenty-year-old Manchester girl, was found in the home of Mrs. Shattuck at No. 47 Woodlawn street, Forest Hills. The defendants when first arraigned in court, were charged with murder, but later the charge was changed to performing an illegal operation.

The government's case will be handled by Assistant District Attorney Thomas Lavelle, while the defence will be represented by John McDonald, John Feeney and John McGaig.

REACH AGREEMENT IN TEA ROOM SUIT

By an agreement the bill in equity brought by Mrs. Margaret B. Purdy against the Assembly Tea Rooms, Inc., Julius Codman and Mrs. Warren M. Leeds of New York, has been dismissed. Counsel for the complainant, after the filing of her bill, were given full opportunity to examine the books and papers in the possession of the respondent, and are now satisfied that there was no intention on the part of the respondents or any of them to defraud her. As a result of the settlement Mrs. Leeds' entire interest in the corporation has been purchased by other parties, whose names are not at the present time to be made public.

Quick Action Prescription Cures Colds in a Day

The best and quickest prescription known to medical science for colds and coughs is as follows: "From your druggist get two ounces of Glycerine and half an ounce of Concentrated Pine compound. Take these two ingredients home and put them into a half pint of good whiskey. Shake it well. Take one to two teaspoonfuls after each meal and at bed time. Smaller doses to children according to age." Be sure to get only the genuine (Globe) Concentrated Pine. Each half ounce bottle comes in a tin screw-top sealed case. Any druggist has it on hand or will quickly get it from his wholesale house. There are many cheaper preparations of large quantity, but it doesn't pay to experiment. This treatment is certain cure. This has been published here for six winters and thousands say it has no equal.

Nearly everybody in Boston reads the AMERICAN.

ROOSEVELT MAKES BIG ADDITION TO ANANIAS CLUB'S MEMBERSHIP

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—Any one of the 700 members of the Aldine Club of the metropolis and every man not who quotes Colonel Theodore Roosevelt has been made a member of the Ananias Club in advance.

This method of increasing the membership of the organization, already made famous and established by the Colonel, is entirely new and original with its founder. Here is now Colonel Roosevelt did it:

"Any man who came down from the dinner and quoted me is a liar."

It made no difference what the dinner said, he was a prevaricator just the same.

The dinner was given by the eminent No. 208 Fifth avenue, complimentary to Colonel Roosevelt and Lyman Abbott. A liner who declined to make known his name quoted Roosevelt as saying in his address: "I am not a candidate for the presidency, but if nominated I will run."

Another diner leaving the Aldine Club quoted Colonel Roosevelt as having said:

"I am not a candidate. I will not be a candidate. I do not want to be a candidate for the presidency. I would not give out this statement if I thought newspaper men were here. I know I am talking with honorable men.

This diner, who also refused to give his name, declared that Colonel Roosevelt did not say "if nominated, I will run."

A third diner, who declined to tell his name, quoted Colonel Roosevelt as saying emphatically: "I will not be a candidate."

Another quoted him as saying: "I am the most misrepresented man in America."

All reporters were denied admission, and a note sent in to Colonel Roosevelt was unanswered. When he left he made the declaration that any one who quoted him was a liar.

KILLED BY TRAIN IN DORCHESTER

William Kainin, aged thirty-four, single, who lived with his brother Paul at 47 Freeport street, Dorchester, was struck by an outward bound Quincy train at the Harrison square station of the New Haven road to day and instantly killed.

Kainin was employed as a modeller by a sculptor on Huntington avenue. To-day he was a trifle late for his train and arrived at the Harrison square station as the train he sees to take was approaching. Rushing into the station, he purchased his ticket, passed in front of the station, a train of freight cars was standing. Thinking he could cross over a few inches, obstructing the view from the station of both the outward and inward bound trains on the main line. Kainin, being in a hurry, instead of using the subway beneath the tracks to get to the other side, attempted to cross between two of the cars of the freight train. As he did so the outbound Quincy express came along and struck him, hurling him fifty feet ahead, and when the body came down the locomotive of the train struck it again.

It is said that the train of freight cars which obstructed the view from the station to both the outward and inward tracks had been standing in front of the station for some time.

SUYDAM GETS FINAL DECREE

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—A decree of absolute divorce was this day filed in Supreme Ct. in favor of Walter L. Suydam, Jr., of Hartsdale, from whom handsome young wife left his country home last September and frankly declared that she had found in Frederick Nolan her true mate.

It had been expected that as soon as the final decree was registered Mrs. Suydam would marry Nolan, but the court rules that she may not marry again in New York State.

Children's Scalp Troubles

Children are subject to many kinds of scalp troubles, such as scale, sores, scabs, ringworm, etc. If neglected, they spread and develop into serious diseases. Scratching aggravates the trouble and increases the danger of infection by other children. Cadum, the new remedy, stops the itching at once and begins healing with the first application. Its prompt use in any scalp trouble will save much suffering and anxiety. Cadum is good for any sore or eruption on the face or body. Of all druggists, 10c and 25c per box.

DANCE RIVALS OPERA TO-NIGHT

It looks as though Mr. Pelleas and Mrs. Melisande, along with other society folks, would have to get to the "opry" to-night as best they can.

To-night may be Masterlinck night at the Boston Opera House, but it's coachmen and chauffeurs' night at the Mechanics building. The coachmen and chauffeurs named January 10 for their annual ball night a long time ago, and it isn't their fault if the Pelleas Melisande train hooked themselves for the opera house the same date.

So, if any substitute "coachmen" and "chauffs" drive Mr. and Mrs. Back Bay to the opera house to-night, one will understand that the regular artist is attending the second annual ball of the Coachman Chauffeurs' Benevolent Association in Paul Revere Hall, Mechanics building.

The C. C. B. A. is the swell coachmen's club, also chauffeurs. The coachmen members are retainers of some of those conservative old families who have refused to join the auto-line. The chauffeurs are the smart uniformed chaps who have style and distinction, in addition to the technical knowledge of their work. They are the "factory made" chauffeurs, who go out with a tag one day and break it the next.

3,500 TO JOIN DOCKMEN IN SYMPATHETIC STRIKE

At noon to-day sixty-five freight clerks, members of the Trans-Atlantic Clerks' Assembly, went on strike in sympathy with the striking longshoremen. One hundred freight clerks employed by the Leyland Line announced their their intention of going on strike.

Following the vote of District Assembly 30, Knights of Labor, at noon, thirty-five hundred freight handlers and clerks made ready to quit their jobs and join the striking longshoremen. It is noticeable that before nightfall the total number of strikers would be at least 6,000.

The threatened strike of the freight employers was taken as a great step in favor of the striking longshoremen. A sympathetic strike has been indorsed by the local bodies of railroad freight clerks, roundhouse men and ship carpenters' assemblies.

The vote by District Assembly 30 took place at a special session at noon in Bonghan Hall, Charlestown, to-day. It was suggested that twenty-four hours' notice of the proposed strike should be given to the railroads before the men go out. Sentiment, however, among the members of the assembly seemed to favor strongly a strike without the giving of an extended notice.

Teamsters May Go Out.

Immediately after the meeting, the precinction was made that the next move will be to make efforts to have the teamsters declare a sympathetic strike.

Should the teamsters follow the freight employes the situation would become exceedingly grave, according to the opinion of leaders on both sides to-day, and would untie in all likelihood the long-drawn-out strike of the teamsters of four years ago.

With ship officials and the strike leaders apparently further from a settlement than ever, shipping in the port was tied up to a more marked degree than ever to-day. Both John Wylde of Patterson, Wylde & Co. and Charles Stewart of the Cunard Line declared they would have nothing more to do with the striking longshoremen. They said they will hold no more conferences and would settle the matter in their own way.

The seriousness of the tieup in Boston was shown by a dispatch from New York this afternoon stating that the Cunard liner Ivernia will sail from New York January 13 instead of from Boston on account of the strike.

Boston Shippers in Despair.

Boston and New England shippers were in despair to-day. In the freight sheds along the water front are hundreds of cars filled with perishable goods. The shippers fear that their produce will be spoiled by the cold before the barrels and boxes can be loaded into vessels in the harbor. This would entail losses amounting to thousands of dollars.

There are nine large ships in the harbor, and the prospect was that none of those would secure a full cargo, owing to the failure of the force of stikebreakers to meet the situation.

Since the strike began six days ago, but three vessels have left the port. Two of these—the Hamburg-American liner Bethania for Hamburg and the Leyland liner Devonian for Liverpool—took but little freight loaded after strike was declared. The Devonian left 2,000 tons of freight behind. The third ship to sail was the Houston liner Mellenes, for South America. The Mellenes made an attempt to take on a cargo in Boston, but sailed for New York.

Instances like this and the fact that the steamer Ivernia has been switched over to New York led business men and shippers to believe that the consequence to shipping out of Boston would be of the gravest nature, unless an early adjustment was reached between the ship officials and the strikers.

Several ships in the harbor are already several days overdue on their sailing schedule.

Ivernia Skips Boston.

The following local organizations voted in favor of the general strike:

The Boston & Maine Railroad, New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad and Grand Junction Freight Handlers Assemblies, New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Freight Clerks; Ships' Carpenters' Assembly, which comprises the men who fit cattle pens and do other woodwork on the ships; Roundhouse and Fuel Department Men's Assemblies, which include the engine wipers and fuel handling men of the Boston & Maine system's Terminal Division.

About the Time It Takes for a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet to Work on the Food and Bring Relief.

TRIAL PACKAGE SENT FREE.

There is no long wait between the time you take a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet and the feeling of relief it will bring to an overloaded stomach. It gets busy in a jiffy and quickly sets things to rights in that tired and disordered stomach. It goes right at the task of digesting the food it finds lodged there and in no time at all has things on the move—the gases cease forming, the breath is sweetened, the coating on the tongue disappears and you are no longer conscious that you even have a stomach.

That is one of the chief recommendations for Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets—that they don't take forever to accomplish the purpose for which you need them. It is just as if you put an extra stomach or two to work when yours needed help. You can't continually overload your stomach and expect it to always smile. It is going to get rebellious and sulky after awhile and refuse to do so being driven to do double work. You must rest it occasionally—not by starving and thereby weakening yourself physically—but by using a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet to do the work of digesting your food.

These tablets contain all the active elements of the natural stomach juices and will alone and unaided digest food just the same as the gastric juices. And nothing could be more harmless than these tablets. They do not affect the system in any way—do not cure any ailment except as they digest food. Use them after meals.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are sold by all druggists everywhere. Price, 50 cents per box. A trial package will be sent if you will write F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

A Little Out of the Way—But It Pays to Walk

Two Noted Singers in Famous Opera Which Will Be Sung To-night

MME. MAETERLINCK AND MARIA GAY

Georgette Leblanc Maeterlinck, wife of the author of the libretto in "Pelleas et Melisande" and Maria Gay, the Spanish contralto, who will appear as the Queen Genevieve.

By FREDERICK JOHNS.

They were beating Georgette Leblanc Maeterlinck. A huge pugilistic looking person was in charge of the job. He took the wife of the famous poet whom Boston honored at a grand reception a week ago and knocked her upon the floor.

First he threw Madame Maeterlinck to the right and she tended in a jump. Not being satisfied with this attitude he picked her up again and slammed her to the left. Then he stooped over and lifting her head, covered with golden tresses, he banged it upon the floor one, two, three, four, five, six times.

The orchestra accompanied each crack with a grunt. Gluegette emitted wild yells as the process went on. Finally the large man, being fatigued, caused the lady to elegantly upon her face and stalked out. To a reporter he gave his name as Vasuil Marcoux. He said he had no hard feelings against the lady, but she deserved a beating and he had given it to her.

If the reporter didn't like it—and he looked at him expectantly, tentatively.

Only a Rehearsal.

Madame Maeterlinck did some very effective screaming and wailing during the next five minutes, and then Andre Caplet threw down his baton. The orchestra hastily departed and Madame picked herself up and crossed the gangway into the auditorium.

She had been rehearsing the wife-beating scene from "Pelleas et Melisande," which is to be sung at the Boston Opera House to-night.

Didn't know there was a wife-beating scene in "Melisande?" Oh, yes. There is also a love scene where a little child named Bernice Fisher is compelled to say upon her stepmother, and a lying scene where Melisande tells her husband some awful whoppers, and a murder scene where Goland kills his brother, and a death scene where Melisande departs in an odor of sanctity.

Madame Maeterlinck seemed dissatisfied with the Saturday-night-in-the-Bowery scene she had just gone through.

"Marcoux is too gentle," she said. "He seems afraid of hurting me. It is necessary that he use more force."

What are you going to do with a woman like that? The more you beat her the better she likes it.

Mrs. J. L. Gardner There.

In addition to the orchestra and Mr. Caplet there was one other witness to the wife-beating scene whose word would have weight with any jury. It was Mrs. John L. Gardner, who with a black veil wrapped closely about her head and face spent the entire afternoon watching the rehearsal.

Madame Maeterlinck was kind enough to come and talk to me. I had already interviewed her twice and she couldn't see what I wanted to talk to her about, but little did she know the resources of American journalism.

The first thing I noticed was that she didn't wear the diamond on her forehead. As the impression had gone abroad that she never removed this gem since Maeterlinck bought it and had it mailed on, I inquired if she had lost it.

"Oh, I do not wear the diamond as Melisande," said Madame. "The diamond is part of myself and a good actress should sink her individuality when playing a part. Besides, suppose I wore the diamond during the scene we have just rehearsed, any accident might have happened."

"Madame, you have now been in Boston more than a week and you should know all about us."

"What is a week?"

Lots of "Impressions."

"Long enough to enable lots of English men to write books upon us."

"Perhaps if I had been going into society and moving about the city I would know more," said Madame, "but I have been rehearsing almost constantly. Save for my reception last Sunday night I have met very few people."

"And you haven't any impressions."

"Oh, yes, lots of them, but they may not be correct. For example, Boston seems to me to be quite European in many ways and in the point of view of its people almost Parisian, but then I have met only those people who are interested in the opera and artistic things."

"What do you think of the Richeson case?"

"What is that?

"Just think of it. Here is a woman who has been in Boston a week and never heard of the Richeson case."

Business of explaining about the Richeson case.

"Why, it is positively weird," said Madame. "It is worthy of the imagination of your American writer, Edgar Allen Poe, whom Maeterlinck and I have read with much pleasure.

"And yet if the charges against this young clergyman should be proved true, it will not be the only case where a clergyman has been found guilty of a horrible crime.

"A man is a man, whether he preaches the gospel or digs in the streets, and under certain circumstances a man will kill. He will even kill a woman.

"Jealousy, fire of passion, and the poor creatures who go on loving do not dream of the remorse that many feels at being compelled to meet and associate with the woman whom he has grown to hate.

"Suppose a man found that his old sweetheart, whom he no longer loved, blocked his way to a woman whom he did love and great wealth which he coveted? Would he strike to remove her from his path? Some men would.

"But for one such sordid things do not exist. I like to think of art, of love, art. In the world of art men kill for love, perhaps, as Goland caused the death of Melisande, but never for money."

Madame was still wearing Melisande's hair. This hair is very yellow and very long. It extends to her feet. In one scene she lets it cover Pelleas like a shower bath.

Mme. Maeterlinck's hair is also very yellow and sufficiently copious, but the long locks she was swinging like a pendulum from her right hand looked suspiciously like a wig.

"Yellow hair," said Madame pensively, "is one of the most potent things in the world. Most of the great women of history were blondes. Those who reigned over the hearts of men most certainly were. Yellow hair and fine gold, these are the forces that have ruled the world."

"But Cleopatra was a brunette."

"I do not believe it," replied Madame Maeterlinck. "You cannot prove it. I prefer to think she was another Melisande."

About this time the irascible Andre Caplet decided to resume the rehearsal. He pointed his baton at Madame and she scooted up the gangway from the theatre to the stage. Vasuil Marcoux came out from the wings and began to beat her again while the orchestra tried to explain the indignation which made him do such a thing, and the pain the lady was experiencing.

ECZEMA TERRIBLE HIS FACE A SIGHT

Brown Crust ¼ Inch Thick. People Would Stare at Him. Itched and Caused Greatest Agony. Could Hardly Endure It. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment and Was Cured.

847 Columbus Ave., New York, N. Y.—"My left thigh was suddenly affected by eczema, also my chin and face. For one or two days it would become a dark brown crust or scab sometimes about one-eighth of an inch thick. It was terrible, as my face was a sad sight to see, all scabs. People would stare at me and my boy friends would never let up on teasing me about it. The itching was greatest when it started to come on. I would not be able to let it alone and as soon as I scratched my face it would start in to water, a yellowish fluid and from then on till it got better for a while it would cause the greatest agony. I could hardly endure it.

"I was given powders, which seemed to drive the eczema on in my face more than ever. Then I took blood medicines, but they had no effect either. I had the eczema for five or seven years on and off. Then I began to use the Cuticura Remedies. It began to disappear so I kept using the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment until I was cured." (Signed) M. Ulmer, Nov. 16, 1911.

PACKERS WIN A BIG POINT

CHICAGO, Jan. 10.—The packers won an important point to-day by a ruling of Federal Judge Carpenter, who sustained a motion by the defense to strike out testimony of Jerome H. Pratt, former Armour employe and later government agent, pertaining to exhibits connecting J. Ogden Armour with operations of the Meat Trust. Two exhibits were also stricken out. The jury was instructed not to consider what they had heard.

The government, however, won a partial victory in the ruling when two exhibits were permitted to remain, showing that District Attorney Wilkerson has decided on "the course of business" of the packers in the control of meat prices.

The two exhibits stricken out are:

No. 53—A letter dated October 18, 5004, dictated by Jerome H. Pratt and sent by hand to J. Ogden Armour at his office in Lasalle street before he saw Pratt returned to Pratt bearing fluress in the handwriting of J. Ogden Armour.

No. 54—A telegram under date of October 18, 4:30 p. m., quoting price margins to the stock yards office of Armour & Co.

Identification of the handwriting by Pratt by virtue of the ruling failed.

GREAT LABOR WAR IS FEARED IN ENGLAND

LONDON, Jan. 10.—Officials of Home Secretary McKenna's office to-day admitted genuine fear that a great labor war is at hand in England. Balloting among the miners on the question of a minimum wage began to-day, and it is now believed apparent that the vote would be nearly unanimous in favor of this principle. The mine owners declare they will never grant the minimum wage, while the miners threaten to strike before they will give up their fight.

GAGE WITHDRAWS AS FRANKLIN'S COUNSEL

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 10.—Three hours before the case of Bert H. Franklin came up to-day before Judge White, former Governor Henry T. Gage, who has been active in charge of the case, announced that he has withdrawn from the counsel for the defense. The withdrawal of Gage and the fact that negotiations had been on between Assistant District Attorney Ford and Franklin, who is charged with bribing jurors in the McNamara case, gave apparent foundation to the report that Franklin may plead guilty to the charges against him.

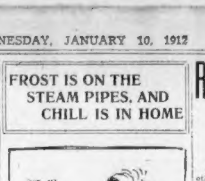
MADE RECEIVER FOR FEDERAL BISCUIT CO.

Cornelius W. Wickersham of New York was appointed by Judge Hough in the United States District Court here to-day ancillary receiver in Massachusetts for the Federal Biscuit Company, a $30,000,000 New York corporation. This company has $40,000 worth of property in Lawrence, and the bond of the ancillary receiver was fixed at $25,000.

LOSS OF $35,000 IN TOBACCO FARM FIRE

SIMSBURY, Ct., Jan. 10.—The farmhouse and three-story warehouse on the tobacco farm of Cullman Brothers, a short distance from the centre of the town, were destroyed by fire at 5:30 a. m. to-day. The loss is $35,000.

FROST IS ON THE STEAM PIPES, AND CHILL IS IN HOME



STOP SHIVERING; WARMER FRIDAY

"Fair, continued cold to-night and Thursday. Moderate northwest winds."

That's the best the weather man can provide us for to-day and to-morrow. But stop shivering there, and listen to this.

"A depression, with cloudiness and slowly rising temperature is found in the West. This should bring about a moderation of the temperature by Friday."

The cold wave descended on Boston in full force again to-day. Beginning at midnight, when it was already down to 15, the mercury fell slowly. It was 12 at 1 a. m. and 2 a. m., then 11 till 6 a. m., when it fell to 10 above, where it stayed till 10 a. m. At 10 and 11 a. m. the temperature had risen another point to 11 above.

RENEW PHELPS'S FIGHT TO-DAY

Governor Foss is expected to make another attempt to-day to save Silas H. Phelps from death in the electric chair, when he refers the petition for commutation of the sentence in life imprisonment to the new Executive Council. The hearing on the petition will probably be held next week.

It was announced to-day that Mrs. Phelps, wife of the condemned man, might come to Boston and personally plead to the Council to spare her husband's life. Mrs. Phelps has asked permission to be permitted to go before the Council with her six children.

Such a plea, it was said, would be the most remarkable ever made in such a case in Massachusetts. The money necessary to take the woman and her children to Boston has been raised, and, if the Council is willing to hear her, she and the little ones will probably appear at the State House next week.

Since the incarceration of Phelps his family has been living in great poverty in their little home in the town of Munroe. The eldest of the children is a girl of twelve, and the youngest is two years old. The family is practically destitute. While the action of the new Council is much in doubt, sympathy for Phelps has increased.

Efforts to learn from members of the new Council how they will vote on the Phelps commutation have been in vain. Three members of the Council have voted for a measure to abolish capital punishment. They are Lieutenant-Governor Luce and Councillors Keith and Schuster. But Mr. Luce and Mr. Keith have declined to discuss the case. Mr. Schuster did not vote in the old Council. Councillor Quinn voted in the old Council for the commutation.

WOMAN OF 77 WEDS.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—Announcement has been made of the marriage of Mrs. M. A. Gordon, millionaire owner of Brooklyn real estate, seventy-seven years old, and P. Barrington Jennings, a real estate broker, twenty-eight years old.

NO DYSPEPSIA, INDIGESTION, GAS OR ANY OTHER STOMACH DISTRESS

Nothing will remain undigested or sour on your stomach if you will take a little Diapepsin occasionally. This powerful digestive and antacid, though as harmless and pleasant as candy, will digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all the food you can eat.

Eat what your stomach craves, without the slightest fear of Indigestion or that you will be bothered with sour risings, Belching, Gas on Stomach, Heartburn, Headaches from stomach, Nausea, Bad Breath, Water Brash or a feeling like you had swallowed a lump of lead, or other disagreeable miseries. Should you be suffering now from any stomach disorder you can get relief within five minutes.

If you will get from your pharmacist a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin you could always go to the table with a hearty appetite, and your meals would taste good, because you would know there would be no Indigestion or sour risings nights or Headache or Stomach misery all the next day; and, besides, you would need laxatives or pills to keep your stomach and bowels clean and fresh.

Pape's Diapepsin can be obtained from your druggist, and contains more than sufficient to thoroughly cure the worst case of Indigestion or Dyspepsia. There is nothing better for Gas on the Stomach or sour odors from the stomach or to cure a Stomach Headache.

You couldn't keep a handier or more useful article in the house.

Excess Calls

Of all Central and Suburban District measured service telephone rates were reduced on January 1st to 3 cents each.

A Boston business man having this kind of service gets a distinct benefit, as the change provides a measured service district with a radius of eight miles, within which all excess calls will be at the reduced rate.

For example: A one-party business line in the Central District costs $48 for 960 calls. Calls in excess of this number cost 3c each. All such calls are usable not only to Central District exchanges (Main, Fort Hill, Haymarket, Richmond, Back Bay, Oxford and Tremont), but also to the 25 Suburban exchanges within an 8-mile radius.

Each Suburban Measured Service District includes all other exchanges, either central or suburban, which are within an eight-mile radius of the calling exchange.

For example: A two-party residence line with 480 calls will cost $24. Each call in excess of 480 calls will cost 3 cents. This service is provided with divided ringing—only one other party on the line, and no bell to be heard except your own.

Call Fort Hill 7600, if you want to receive the benefit of these new rates. There will be no charge for a call to this number from any telephone or pay station in the Metropolitan District.

ONLY 19 SELLING DAYS LEFT

It was decided upon at 11 o'clock Saturday Morning, December the 30th, to close up this store.

Do You Realize What This Means?

The O'Callaghan Company for 21 years has had a first-class reputation as a suit and cloak store and must submit to circumstances; the reason is a decision of the management to close the store in 19 days.

This means that the most decisive steps must be instantly taken to turn the present enormous stock into cash. The mark downs are great. Every woman who reads and wishes to save money will be keenly interested. No thrifty shoppers will skip such buying chances

FIND INFANTILE PARALYSIS CURE

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—Dr. Simon Flexner, head of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research, has declared his belief that infantile paralysis, with which medical science up to this time has failed to cope, has been conquered.

The curative remedy is known as urotropin, and its value has been demonstrated as an apparent corrective agency. Infantile paralysis is one of the diseases that in recent years has staggered the medical profession, but its tremendous increase has only recently been suspected. Dr. Flexner declares the disease to be among the most contagious and deadly that young humans in any time have to face.

The noted pathologist is careful to qualify his announcement as a prophecy rather than a statement of accomplished fact. He believes, however, that with some modifications of the drug it will do away with the scourge medically called acute anterior poliomyelitis, and commonly known as infantile paralysis.

The drug, urotropin, is formed by the action of ammonia on formaldehyde, and is one of the greatest antiseptics known to science.

It seems to lack the deleterious effects of other antiseptics when directly introduced into the human system.

The method of administering the drug is peculiarly heroic. A hole is actually bored in the skull and the brain entered by a hypodermic needle. This is done under anaesthesia, in this way the specific is introduced directly into the nervous system. The reaction is sharp and pronounced.

It is evident, however, that some modifications of the drug are necessary before perfect results are obtained. It is upon this that Dr. Flexner and other Rockefeller Institute scientists are now working.

The discovery of the use of this drug came to the doctors a time when they almost despaired of finding a cure for the disease that annually wipes off tens of thousands of infants. The worst feature was that it was discovered that an antitoxine serum was impossible to obtain. In one instance the serum was passed through sixty individuals, and at the end was more virulent than when taken from the original patient. The insanity usually produced in most diseases by this process is entirely absent in infantile paralysis.

NEW ENGLAND DRY GOODS MEN ELECT

The New England Dry Goods Association, at a meeting at the City Club, reelected Charles C. Ferris of the Gilchrist Company, president. P. A. O'Connell of E. T. Slattery Company, and William G. Walker of the Walker Sales Company, were re-elected vice-presidents. Walter G. Hawkins of Jordan Marsh Company was elected vice-president to take the place of H. A. Free, and Israel Ulry of the Ulry Waist House, treasurer. Thomas M. Fitzpatrick of Brown, Durrell Company, the retiring treasurer, has served the association in that capacity for six years.

WIFE OF JUDGE FALLON IS DEAD

Mrs. Sarah Fallon, wife of Judge Joseph D. Fallon of the South Boston Police Court, died early today after a long illness at her home, No. 760 East Broadway, South Boston. Mrs. Fallon was seventy-seven years old. She leaves several children.

STATE HOUSE NOTES

Among the petitions for legislation filed with the clerk of the House to-day are the following:

Of Representative B. F. Sullivan of Boston, to authorize the parole of prisoners and to establish a board of parole; of Adjutant General Gardner W. Pearson, to remove the limitation that the board of armory commissioners may not build more than three armories in any one year; of Representative Parker of Woburn, that the Metropolitan Park Commission be authorized to construct a boulevard from the city of Woburn to the Mystic Valley parkway in the town of Winchester.

The State Board of Gas and Electric Light Commissioners issued an order today authorizing the Salem Electric Lighting Company to issue 4,000 shares of new capital stock, at $90 per share, the par value being $50. The company asked authority to issue 5,000 shares, but the commission authorizes only 4,000.

The Commission on Workmen's Compensation to-day filed with the clerk of the House a partial report, in which it recommends seventeen amendments of the act passed last year, all of which with a single exception, are but perfecting in nature. The exception is a recommendation for a change in the number and composition of members to constitute the Industrial Accident Board, which is to be appointed by the Governor some time prior to July 1. The recommendation of the commission is that the board consist of five members, instead of three; that the salary of the chairman be $5,000 per year instead of $6,500, and the salary of each of the other members $4,500 instead of $6,000.

BEAUTY HINTS.

Superfluous Hair.

Can you tell me if there is really any way to permanently destroy a growth of superfluous hair on my face and arms? I am 50 years old and the growth is very bad. My daughter, who is 22, is similarly troubled, and cannot wear short sleeves or low necked gowns. Depilatories seem to be worthless, and I am told that although the electric needle is sometimes effective it is very expensive and painful. Should be thankful if you would give me your advice.

MRS. J. M.

You are wise to avoid the electric needle. It is a dangerous operation, and besides being painful often leaves scars. I have frequently stated in these columns that it is better to endure the annoyance than to suffer the torture of the electric needle. I have also warned readers against depilatories, which are worse than useless because they cause the growth to appear thicker and coarser than before.

Recently I have learned of a simple method of removing it based upon scientific principles. The discovery of an eminent specialist connected with an English university, which is now being successfully used in this country. If you will write to Elmer Chaplin, 111 E. K. Wirt St., Providence, R. I., mentioning your name and enclosing stamp for reply, she will send you without charge detailed information of this method, which will undoubtedly enable you to be permanently free from all trace of this miserable blemish.

$50,000 FIRE AT BRAINTREE

floor of the Lyceum block, and quickly spread to the office of Hartley White, civil engineer, on the same floor. The flames were seen by Constable J. R. Quinby, from his home on the opposite side of Elm street. Quinby, dressed only in his trousers and a shirt, ran barefooted to the nearest fire alarm box.

The fire alarm apparatus was out of order, and before the firemen fully responded to the alarm, notified the telephone girls. They telephoned to the fire station and seeing that the Braintree department could not cope with the blaze, sent word to Quincy.

The automobile chemical of the Quincy department was followed later by an engine and hose cart. The firemen were obliged to thaw out the hydrants before they could get a stream of water on the blaze, and low pressure was so low it was all but useless.

Chapel Also Destroyed.

From the second floor of the Lyceum Block the fire shot into the hall and lodge rooms of the local order of the Knights of Pythias and soon the whole building was a furnace.

The North Congregational Church, the oldest church in Braintree, adjoining the Lyceum Block on Elm street, soon caught fire and in less than an hour was doomed. The chapel also fell prey to the flames.

The residence of William Smith, an undertaker, on Washington street, at the rear of the big block, caught fire several times, but the flames were extinguished before serious damage had been done. Martin moved his possessions in the street and the members of his family escaped in safety.

The blaze was a spectacular one. Elm street runs up over a small hill from the Braintree railroad station, and the burning block and church could be seen for miles. The whole town was awakened and hundreds of persons flocked to the scene.

The wind blew a gale, and burning embers, pieces of wood and other combustible materials carried up by the wind dropped on the roofs of the Quinby residence, the telephone exchange and Schraut's bakery.

Small Fires Started.

Several small fires started on the roofs of these buildings but they were quickly extinguished by the volunteers who formed bucket brigades.

Miss Mollie Hodges and Miss Rosamond Durgin, the telephone girls, were advised to flee, but they stuck to their posts, sending calls for assistance to the outside towns.

The Long block, a three-story wooden structure, situated on Elm street about 200 yards away, and a short distance from the railway station, was in danger several times. Several persons living in the block fled and neighbors assisted them in removing furniture to a safe place. The Quinby residence, also in danger, was then vacated.

When Chief Peter Williams of the Quincy department arrived he was placed in command of the fire fighting forces by A. C. Drinkwater, chairman of the Braintree Board of Selectmen.

Chief Williams massed the firemen on the north sides of the burning buildings and gave orders to have all other buildings in the vicinity drenched with water. Nearly a sense of dizziness at the rear of the church and the Lyceum block were saved owing to the fact that the wind was blowing away from them.

Hurt When Steeple Fell.

Chief Williams was injured and several other firemen and volunteers had narrow escapes when the 150-foot steeple of the church collapsed and crashed into the burning debris of the structure carrying with it the walls and throwing up a rain of blazing embers like a miniature volcano.

The firemen had been expecting the steeple to fall and orders were issued by Chief Williams to stand away from the church. He was crossing to the front of the structure when the tall spire fell. A stray timber struck him on the head as he was thrown to the ground. He was stunned, but escaped with his life.

Other persons who were standing near the chief escaped with bruises or slight burns, but none was seriously injured. Only a sudden shift in the wind saved the steeple from crashing down upon the roof of the telephone exchange.

The firemen fought the fire for more than four hours and by that time the Lyceum Block and the Congregational Church were a mass of ruins. Nothing of the structure was saved, as the intense heat drove the firemen back time and again.

SEARCH FOR 12-YEAR-OLD GIRL

Jessie Belle Mackenzie, twelve years old, very pretty and tall for her age, easily passing for fifteen or sixteen years, is missing from the home of her uncle, John J. Mackenzie, No. 670 Somerville avenue, Somerville, since last Saturday, and the Somerville police have been asked to try to find her.

Jessie came to Boston from Bangor last July and went to live with her uncle at 670 Somerville avenue address. Both her father and mother are dead. She obtained employment in the candy factory of E. M. Marr, on Holland street, East Somerville, receiving as pay four dollars a week.

Saturday morning she left home as usual at 7:40 a. m. to go to work. She arrived at her factory, but left there in the afternoon about 1:30. Nothing has been heard of her since by her relatives. She told some of her girl friends that she was going to Bangor. Her uncle discovered that she had taken away some dresses in a bundle.

She is tall and fair, light blue eyes, has sun-kissed cheek, black hat, pink and blue plaid skirt and muff.

CITY CLUB MEMBERS AID OPERA PLAN

Following a meeting of the Opera Club, composed of members of the Boston City Club interested in supporting the Boston Opera Company, it was announced that members of the City Club have subscribed over 1,200 seats in the first and second balconies, for five performances last week and this week, and it is anticipated that the club will continue to patronize the opera to the extent of several hundred of the less expensive seats at most of the performances during the remainder of the opera season. Enthusiastic members of the City Club are purchasing their seats for their friends as well as for their own use. This is reported as one of the most substantial methods of support that has as yet been given Elleo D. Jordan in his effort to give Boston one of the best opera companies in the world.

BROCKTON GIRL IN BASEBALL ROMANCE

BROCKTON, Jan. 10.—The engagement of Miss Gladys Elaine Dillard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Dillard of No. 74 Moraine street to Arthur Mayhohn of New York has been announced. Mayhohn met the young woman when he was a pitcher for the Brockton New England League team two years ago. $1,000,000,000 IN N. Y. RUINS

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—Flames were still raging to-day within the fire-coated ruins of the Equitable Life Assurance Society's home building, which was destroyed yesterday with a loss of seven lives and financial damages estimated at from $2,000,000 to $7,000,000.

The billion dollar treasure buried beneath the ruins is made up of cash, stocks bonds and other valuable papers held in part as follows:

Equitable Life Assurance Society, interven $250,000,000 and $300,000,000; Equitable Trust Company, $50,000,000; Gould estate, $100,000,000; Harriman estate, $125,000,000; August Belmont & Co., $150,000,000; Kountze Brothers, $10,000,000; Thomas F. FUNSTON GETS TROOPS READY

MANILA, Jan. 10.—Preparations for actual warfare were made to-day by soldiers of the third battalion of the Fifteenth Regiment of Infantry, U. S. A., which has been ordered to proceed at once to China. Major James M. Arrasmith will be in command of the 500 men. There will be fifteen officers in the detachment.

Field service wagons, hospital corps and a platoon of machine guns will also be taken along. Arrangements are in charge of Brigadier-General Frederick Funston, of the Department of Luzon. Each soldier is being supplied with a generous quantity of ammunition. It is expected that another battalion will be ordered to China soon.

PRUDENCE vs. EXPERIENCE

THE chances for sweeping fires in Boston have been frequently commented on by those thoroughly familiar with conditions here. Great fires always involve tremendous losses in securities and other valuable papers—losses which an insurance policy does not cover.

Prudent men insure their valuables against loss or destruction by keeping them in a modern safe deposit vault; the careless and improvident learn through experience and at tremendous loss the lesson which successful men foresee.

The safe deposit vaults at the two offices of the Old Colony Trust Company present unusual advantages, both on account of their modern construction and convenient location.

Branch Office TEMPLE PLACE

To the Policyholders of the Equitable Life Assurance Society:

The burning of the Home Office Building at 120 Broadway will cause but temporary inconvenience in the transaction of our business.

The loss of the building itself will make no reduction in the Society's assets, for it has not been carried as an asset, on account of its small size, its age and the high value of the land on which it rests. The securities and important records are protected by fireproof vaults, which are intact. Most of the office force and records were removed some time ago to the Society's new building No. 2 Albany Street.

The executive offices of the Society and the cashier's department have been established in the City Investing Building, No. 165 Broadway.

The Society will occupy the 2nd, 3rd and 4th floors of that building.

This will for the time being be the Home Office of the Society, where all business with the public will be transacted, including the receipt of premiums and the payment of claims.

CUPID'S APPEAL MOVES JUDGE

For the second time since it went into effect January 1, a Massachusetts judge has helped "would-be weds" around the law requiring five days notice of an intention to marry. The new law nearly caused a serious upset in Malden until the parties wishing to become married appealed to Judge Charles M. Bruce in the Malden District Court to give them permission to wed.

Phillips Singer of No. 218 Bryant street, called on City Clerk Leverett D. Holden to procure a license to marry Miss Lena Freizka of No. 124 Boylston street. Singer was greatly surprised when told that the intentions would have to be filed five days in advance.

A large number of invitations had been sent out by the couple and all arrangements had been made for the ceremony. The prospective groom was informed that he could get around the matter by appealing to Judge Bruce of the District Court.

This was done and with the prospective bride Singer appeared before the court and permission was given. The wedding was held as per schedule.

Daughter Tells How Mrs. Howe Refuted Dr. Osler's Theory

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—Mrs. Maud Howe Elliott, daughter of Julia Ward Howe, held up her mother as a living refutation of Dr. Osler's theory as to the age at which a person becomes useless in an address before the Women's Republican Club at Delmonico's yesterday.

"My mother's life was a glorious refutation of that disgusting remark," she said. "Some of her best writings were her clearest and best, some of them written shortly before her death at the age of ninety-one."

Mrs. Elliott said that when her mother was eighty-seven years old she wrote in her diary her wishes for the coming years. For herself she said:

"I wish for work, useful and honorable, and as remunerative as it shall please God to send."

"She wrote chiefly for love," said Mrs. Elliott, "and next for a modest honorarium of $5. The Atlantic Monthly gave her $5 when she wrote 'The Battle Hymn of the Republic,' and that was all she ever received for it.

"At one time Mrs. Howe said:

"'They think me too old, but there is still a little ginger left in the old blue jar.' Other actions of hers were: 'Life is like a cup of tea, the sugar all at the bottom of the cup.'

"'In the house of labor best can I build the house of rest.'

"'We must not make the mistake of letting our arms rust in lying them down to fight other people's battles, which are often much easier than our own.'"

Drives Catarrh Out of the System

The Day of Drugs Is Past

Home Treatment Proves Most Effective

Catarrh is no longer merely a misfortune. It is a sin. There is no excuse for you to make yourself and everybody about you miserable because of offensive breath, nasal speech and a generally unhealthy condition due to chronic catarrh. You can cure yourself at home, simply, safely and quickly.

Mix together two ounces of glycerine, eight ounces of pure whiskey and half an ounce of virgin oil of pine. Take a teaspoonful every four hours. The tightness in the nose and throat will loosen up in a few hours. Breathing will become free, head noises will cease and the fetid breath will become sweet. Sympathetic disorders of the urinary passages will disappear.

Virgin oil of pine is the quickest and surest of all nature's antidotes for diseases of this character. It is said to cure the worst colds inside of twenty-four hours. See that the label of the Leach Chemical Company, of Cincinnati, Ohio, is on the carton containing the virgin oil of pine, as this label is the guarantee of purity and freshness.

PLAN HOME FOR WORKING GIRLS

Mrs. Caroline M. Ensler, president of the Women's Auxiliary of the Lynn Young Men's Christian Association, is the head of a committee which has undertaken to raise a $50,000 fund for a working girls' home in that city. Mgr. Tesling of St. Mary's Church has indorsed the idea.

TO INSTALL NEW COUNTY TYRONE MEN

Officers for 1912 of the County Tyrone Association will be publicly installed tomorrow evening in Knights of Honor Hall, Cambridge. James T. Keaney of the Central Council and the degree staff will perform the ceremony.

BOY WANDERER FACING DEATH

Nine-year-old James F. Murphy, who was found unconscious and nearly starved to death on Woodman street, Lynn, is in the Lynn Hospital to-day, facing the amputation of both feet, which were frozen during four days of wandering. He is on the dangerous list and may not survive.

For days he has been sleeping in sheds and cellars and eating what little his former playmates could screw for him. The lad is the son of Mrs. Margaret Murphy of No. 39 Sumner street, Lynn, a widow.

Two months ago she decided to send Jimmie to board with his aunt, Mrs. Michael O'Connor of Everett.

Friday the little fellow was on an errand, giving him twenty-five cents with which to make purchases. She waited for him to return and then notified the Everett police.

It seems he had boarded a car to see his mother, but upon arriving in Lynn he dared not go home.

Night was approaching, and becoming sleepy he hurled around for several hours, until he finally discovered a shed filled with hay. He climbed to the top of the loft and worked his way under the hay. Here he slept all night. Then he spent the day wandering the streets. From some of his boy friends he secured a little food, and at night scorched out a sleeping place in a cellar.

He continued with this program for four days. Monday he encountered the cold snow and rain storm. His clothing and shoes became soaked, the cold increased they froze to his body. Monday night he again entered the house.

When he awakened he was unable to stand. He crawled from the cellar and by grasping the tops of fences proceeded as far as Woodman street, when he became unconscious.

Joseph Baldwin of No. 35 Woodman street saw the little chap fall and carried Jimmie into the house. The ambulance was summoned, and the little fellow taken to the hospital. He regained consciousness, and gave the officials his name and home address. Then like his mother, who had been driven almost frantic with worry and grief, was summoned.

DUBLIN ASSOCIATION TO HOLD REUNION

The annual reunion and ball of the Dublin Association will be held this evening in Paine Memorial Hall. Messages of good cheer will be read from John E. Redmond, M. P.; the Lord Mayor of Dublin; Douglas Hyde of the Gaelic League; Joseph Devlin, M. P., and Thomas Sexton, J. J. Brumgoole, president of the association, will be toastmaster. P. Henry O'Neil, floor director; John Dornan, chief of aides; Peter A. Conroy, president of the Cogniz Council Irish County Clubs, will be chairman of the reception committee.

WORTH KNOWING

Best Prescription Obtainable for Backache and Kidneys.

"Mix half ounce fluid extract Buchu; half ounce Murax compound; six ounces good pure gin; shake bottle well each time and take in doses of one to two teaspoonfuls after meals and at bedtime." Any druggist will mix or supply these ingredients. This mixture will quickly relieves backache, rheumatic pains, frequent and highly colored urination. These symptoms of kidney trouble must have prompt attention to avoid Bright's disease or diabetes.

TO BAR WOMEN FROM FOUNDRIES

A bill providing that women shall not work in core-rooms or other parts of foundries, at forges, or in about quarries, except as office employes, is among a number of labor measures filed with the Clerk of the House, on petition of John Weaver Sherman, representing the State Branch of the American Federation of Labor.

Among the bills filed by Mr. Sherman are: Anti-injunction bill; peaceful persuasion bill; initiative and referendum equal suffrage; to prohibit women from serving liquor where the sale of liquor is the principal business; labor department bill, providing for a commissioner elected by the people with two deputies; to strike out from the workingmen's compensation bill the provision that liability insurance companies may underwrite claims under the act; for the election of judges by popular vote; for the abolition of private detective agencies; providing that buildings valued at $2,000 or less shall be exempt from taxation; to regulate the settlement of labor disputes, and a bill relieving associations of employers and trade unions from tort actions.

Fight on Redistricting.

A hint of the struggle which may be expected when the report of the recess redistricting committee comes up for consideration was given in the House during discussion of the adoption of an order offered by Representative Cavanagh of Everett for the appointment of a special committee to consider the report.

Representative Washburn of Worcester, chairman of Ways and Means, served notice on the House that the Worcester members would vigorously oppose the proposed plan, which, he said, contemplates the turning over to the Democrats of two more Congressional districts.

Two State finance commission bills have been filed with the Clerk of the House, one on petition of Speaker Cushing and the other by Representative White of Newton. Mr. White's bill would have an elective commission, consisting of the members of the finance committee of the Executive Council, Cushing's bill provides for the appointment of a supervisor of estimates and accounts.

It provides also for the creation of a Board of Public Debt, to consist of the supervisor of estimates and accounts, the Treasurer of the Commonwealth and the Director of the Bureau of Statistics.

White's Finance Bill.

The White bill requires the heads of departments, institutions and commissions to report to the Auditor in the usual way, and that officer is required to send the estimates to the finance committee of the Council, regular appropriations and special appropriations in separate documents. The finance committee shall have authority to investigate and make such recommendations to the General Court as it may deem proper.

Representative Sullivan of Boston asks for legislation creating a commission of three, two to be named by the Governor and one by the Mayor of Boston, to investigate all complaints against public service corporations operating in the Metropolitan district.

A bill to prohibit the operation of street cars on Washington street, Boston, between Adams square and Boylston street, between 6 a. m. and 6 p. m. was filed by Representative Edward F. Mellen.

WOMAN'S BURNS FATAL.

MARLBORO, Jan. 10.—Mrs. A. A. Keith and her husband were so seriously burned in a fire at their home on Lakeside avenue that Mrs. Keith died in the hospital.

CASCARETS WORK WHILE YOU SLEEP

Salts, Calomel and Cathartic Pills Are Violent—They Act on Bowels As Pepper Acts in Nostrils.

Take a Cascaret tonight and thoroughly cleanse your Liver, Stomach and Bowels, and you will surely feel great by morning. You men and women who have headache, coated tongue, can't sleep, are bilious, nervous and upset, bothered with a sick, gassy, disordered stomach, or have backache and feel all worn out.

Are you keeping clean inside with Cascarets—or merely forcing a passageway every few days with salts, cathartic pills or castor oil? This is important.

Cascarets immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the decomposed waste matter and poison from the intestines and bowels.

Remember, a Cascaret tonight will straighten you out by morning. A 10-cent box from your druggist means a clear head and cheerfulness for months. Don't forget the children.

CHICAGO AND NEW YORK BATTLE OVER WHICH SETS STYLE

CHICAGO, Jan. 10.—Jealousy of Chicago and New York fashion experts threatens disruption of the Ladies' Tailors and Dressmakers' Association in convention here to establish "American styles for American women."

"New York shall be the fashion centre!" cried A. M. Grean of that city, who is chairman of the association's executive board.

"Chicago must set the pace!" declared H. A. Weitzenfeld, secretary of the local association.

The 150 delegates immediately began taking sides. The battle for supremacy will take place today at the election of officers.

DELCASSE GETS CABINET PLACE

PARIS, Jan. 10.—Official announcement was made today that M. Delcasse has accepted the post of Minister of Foreign Affairs in the French Cabinet, succeeding M. De Selves, who resigned yesterday because of the growing tension over Moroccan affairs. M. Delcasse was Minister of Marine in the Caillaux Cabinet, but resigned to become Foreign Minister. His post will probably be filled by Admiral Germinet.

PRISON HEAD TO OPPOSE THAW

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 10.—Colonel Joseph F. Scott, State Superintendent of Prisons, will ask Attorney-General Carmody to represent the State in any litigation that may ensue as the result of new attempts to secure the freedom of Harry K. Thaw. Colonel Scott declares his interest in the case is not personal.

Spirits for Rheumatism

The use of spirits in the treatment of rheumatism has proved an innovation among the medical profession. When mixed with certain other ingredients and taken properly it is said to be an almost infallible cure for rheumatism and backache. Here is the formula: "From your druggist get one ounce of Toris compound (in original sealed package) and one ounce of syrup of Sarsaparilla compound. Take these two ingredients home and put them into a half pint of good whiskey. Shake the bottle and take a tablespoonful before each meal and at bedtime." Results come immediately. If your druggist does not have Toris compound in stock he will get it for a few hours from his wholesale house. Don't be influenced to take some patent medicine instead of this. Insist on having the genuine Toris compound in the original one ounce sealed yellow package.

Try This Famous Pinex "Pint of Cough Syrup"

A Family Supply for 50c, Saving $2. The Surest, Quickest Remedy You Ever Used or Money Refunded.

A cough remedy that saves you $2, and is guaranteed to give quicker, better results than anything else, is surely worth trying. And one trial will show you why Pinex is used in more homes in the U. S. and Canada than any other cough remedy.

You will be pleasantly surprised by the way it takes right hold of a cough, giving almost instant relief. It will usually stop the most obstinate, deep-seated cough in 24 hours, and is unequalled for prompt results in whooping cough.

A 50-cent bottle of Pinex, when mixed with home-made sugar syrup, makes a full pint of the best cough remedy ever used. Easily prepared in five minutes—directions in package.

The taste is pleasant—children take it willingly. Stimulates the appetite and is slightly laxative—both excellent features. Splendid for croup, hoarseness, asthma, bronchitis and other throat troubles, and a highly successful remedy for incipient lung troubles.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of Norway White Pine extract, rich in guaiacol and other natural healing pine elements. Simply mix with sugar syrup or strained honey, in a pint bottle, and it is ready for use.

Pinex has often been imitated, but never successfully, for nothing else will produce the same results. The genuine is guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. Certificate of guarantee is wrapped in each package. Your druggist has Pinex or will gladly get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

The AMERICAN goes into more than all the other evening papers of Boston combined. It is the Quality newspaper.

THREE RIVERS SEVEN AND INTERCOLONIALS BATTLE AT ARENA

SNOW BRUSHES ON SPEEDWAY

The horse is king, and just as long as the sleighing continues he will remain in that exalted position. This fact was attested by the large number out on runners in the park systems and speedways. At the Charles River speedway there is almost daily a jam of teams on the upper road, while the speedway itself was filled to overflowing; too many, in fact, for racing and brushing the trotters and pacers with safety.

Seeing the condition of the speedway, many of the drivers took themselves to the park drives, and the system leading to Chestnut Hill reservoir and the one around Jamaica pond were lined with natty hitches and the more stylish heavy Russian sleighs to which were attached the high kneeacting pairs of horses.

Hall Drives Fast Pair.

The scene at Charles river speedway was a strong reminder of the days of the Mill Dam road of many years ago, before the time of the automobile. A sight was when George G. Hall swept over the course with his pair of trotters, Don Labor, 2:04¾, and Berralde, 2:08¼, hitched to a speed sleigh. They stepped together like one horse, and the pace of speed they displayed made many of the onlookers exclaim that the coming season would see a new pole record set for New England.

W. J. McDonald and his trainer A. J. Furlush, had plenty of sport driving the high-class horses in their stable. That no one would appear with a crack only a little later to come again with another. In this way was driven the champion pacer of the speedway, Chief Wilkes; the champion of the speedway trotters, Demarest, and then in turn La Brenda, Castle Gould and Hawkins.

J. O. Reef took things rather easy with Reliance, 2:11¾, evidently waiting for the matinee of this afternoon to cut him loose. This gelding is being prepared for a chance at Chief Wilkes' mile later in the season, which is the meeting next month in Augusta, Me., where he will start in the 2:07 and other fast events.

Sam Hastings was "Johnny-on-the-spot" at all times with his flying pacing mare, Star Lily Bingen, and a clever hand he is a world of brush when asked to drop her head for a brush.

J. Henry Richardson took life easy driving Chain Shot, 2:08, the fast trotter he brought up from his Thorndale farm in Andover for the season.

President Garmon of the Metropolitan Driving Club had his fun driving Nettie Margrave, which has all the signs of showing her heels in the best when the question is put to her.

Thompson Out With Spim.

J. D. Thompson made the snow fly with his rever with George Newton, who came from Cambridge with Ned Norton. C. C. Mayberry was the happiest wh n in the thickest of the battle with the driver of his mare Clayiera. C. E. Newsom kept a steadying hand on Chester Boy. Len Newbert enjoyed the fun driving one of Wilbur Dunlap's horses. Billy Long is in New York to the Grand Circuit stewards' meeting.

Thomas J. Griffin took speedy snowball with his pacing mare Lady Bingen, 2:09½, and was looking for more when the last call for the matinee sounded for home stables.

W. F. Purbush kept the family name good with the pacer Will Be. Sympacer Gus completed the string of 1-2 him. R. E. Thompson gave Paul a couple of sharp brushes, and appeared contented as the race ended. Driver Joe Maher was out with his pacer winner, the Regent mare Lady Florence Cox.

BATTLE ON TO COVER THIRD FOR THE TIGERS

DETROIT, Jan. 10.—There is going to be the finest little battle that ever started training camp ies seen in years when the Tigers go to Monroe next Spring, unless all signs fail. Third base will be the bone of contention, and there will be at least four strong candidates for the honor of holding down that position. Several dark horses also may make trouble, and it would not be surprising to see that a dozen earnest young athletes breaking their respective necks in gain the favorable attention of Manager Jennings.

TECH TO MEET YALE IN NEW HOCKEY RINK

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 10.—A game between Yale and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology has been arranged for next Saturday in the new Yale rink. It will be the only athletic feature of Yale's annual social week, which opens on Saturday, as the Technology team defeated Harvard, 4 to 1, a sharp game is expected. It was stated by the Yale Management that if enough interest is shown in the hockey games which will be arranged here at the Yale field rink this Winter the new method of freezing by natural means will be abandoned next season and an artificial ice-making plant installed.

READVILLE RACE DATES ARRANGED

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—Grand Circuit harness racing will undergo important changes next Summer as the result of action taken at the annual meeting of stewards of the circuit here.

In the allotment of dates New York City and Pittsburg are admitted to the circuit; Lexington, Ky., is invited to join; Columbus is reinstated; Indianapolis is withdrawn from the circuit; the Goshen, N. Y., track is out, for the coming year at least.

The dates assigned are as follows:

Kalamazoo, Mich., July 15-20.
Detroit, Mich., July 22-27.
Cleveland, O., July 29-August 3.
Buffalo, N. Y., August 5-10.
Pittsburg, Pa., Augus 12-17.
New York, August 19-24.
Readville, Mass., August 26-31.
Hartford (?), September 2-7.
Syracuse (?), September 9-14.
Michigan State Fair, September 16-21.
Columbus, O., September 23-28.

In addition to New York and Pittsburg applications for admission to the circuit from Boston, owner of the million dollar racetrack at Salem, N. H., endeavored to have his track included in the circuit, but the stewards were averse to this, as the ground that the big Salem track would be a too close competitor of the older New England tracks.

The stewards voted to abolish the office of a national judge and starter, and instructed each local association to employ a presiding judge and official starter. The office of master of transportation, formerly filled by A. Kimball, of Boston, was abolished. A reduction in the annual dues of associations and stables from $10 to $5.00 was made by unanimous vote.

H. H. Devereaux, of Cleveland, was unanimously re-elected president of the board of stewards, and Clarence W. Syracuse, N. Y., was elected vice-president to succeed Dr. Spalding, and George G. Dietrich, of Cleveland was re-elected secretary.

Baseball Notes

Some good ball players don't cost $22,500. Pitcher Hendrix of the Pirates cost the Chicago outfit the colossal sum of $27,500 when it transferred him from a small Kansas town to the lair of the Buccaneers.

In a hospital in Detroit lies George Mullin, Tiger pitcher, convalescing from another operation necessary to cure trouble. He will be around in about a week. The operation was performed in the one performed last Summer which put Mullin out of the game at the time his service were most needed.

The Pittsburg Council has finally passed the ordinance drawn up in the interest of President Dreyfus, in which all forms of ticket scalping are prohibited. It will become a law as soon as Mayor Magee signs it.

Bob Hedges of St. Louis says there is a conspiracy afoot to drive him out of the American League. He says he knows where it's located, but he holds rather fixedly at Sportsman St. Louis sporting circles.

"Scotty" Cameron of the Baltimore club will probably burn up the International League this season. Scotty is a natural baseball athlete at the averages of his proceedings in the box. Should he get a trifle more speed, scouts shall wonder why the astute Connie Mack grabbed the youthful phenom, the fact remains that Scotty is rapidly getting base running and sacrifice hitting, while he can be counted to take care of his share of batting averages with the puny total of .247 to his credit.

Harry Davis intends to teach the Naps a new system of play next season that has the Cleveland fans all in a flutter. Davis is frank O'Day declaring that he will follow the Giant system of baseball, and that leads the Philadelphia manager had better put a copyright on his methods.

"Cravath, former Red Sox player, is a great Spring training player," says the scribe writer. Yes, and he generally finishes out the season, too. That's a better recommendation that is a good deal larger than it use in Spring. "Gavy" is good in any old season.

Detroit has six candidates to try out for third base in the Spring. With that many on hand, finding the proper man doesn't look like Hughey Jennings was a conspicuous success in handing George Moriarty on the Detroit payroll.

If what the Toledo newspapers say is true, Bresnahan would have been getting himself in bad when he sent Huggins to Milwaukee. The Toledo scribes claim he allow Miller to get away to the American Association you may know, there is something wrong with them.

The Buffalo Club is scrambling about looking for a suitable place to train. They were getting serious in the hopes that they would use Columbus, Ga., but Garry and Hinch swung a little surprise on them by announcing that the Reds had closed negotiations for the place.

Paul Sentell, the Italian infielder, who was such a sensation with the Phillies a few years ago, is a member of the Kansas City club of the Southern League. He has returned an unsigned contract to Manager Billy Smith.

Paul Cobb, brother of the immortal Tyrus Ilikes Lincoln so well that he has forsaken his home in Georgia to take up his residence in the Nebraska city.

According to a Detroit rumor, Jim Delahanty, Tiger second baseman, may become a partner of Sam Crawford and Ty Cobb in the Tiger outfield next year. He is getting slow for the inner works.

Clark Griffith says that he would have applied for a berth as umpire in the National League if he had not been appointed manager of the Washington team. How superior he would have been with his fellow umpires when they recollected his baseball!

Harvard Gives Stadium for A. A. U. Olympic Games

By TED PARKE.

Lovers of track athletics will be glad to hear that the Harvard Corporation has seen fit to grant the use of the Harvard Stadium to the A. A. U. for the trials for the Olympic team early next June.

The decision was reached at the weekly meeting of the body, although the matter has hung fire for some time now, the question under discussion being that of allowing the A. A. U. to charge an admission fee.

The Stadium is, of course, as the property of Harvard University, under the control and direction of the Harvard Corporation, the governing body of this institution, and it was up to them to allow the A. A. U. to use it for the purpose desired. The latter body was anxious to get this track because it is generally agreed by everyone who has run on it that it is the fastest in the country.

Two Big Sport Events.

The rule is that when the Stadium is used for something other than a college sport admission cannot be charged except by special vote of the corporation and with this decided in the affirmative everything runs smoothly.

It has not yet been decided where the annual Intercollegiate track and field meet will be held this June, but despite the fact that it took place in the Stadium last year, and the rule has been in general in past years that the meet shall alternate between Cambridge and Philadelphia, the feeling just at present seems to be that it will come to Cambridge again this year.

That it should be held in the Stadium again, despite the old tradition and the possible wounded feelings of the authorities of the University of Pennsylvania, is only logical.

Year after year great things have been done on the Stadium track and with five records broken last year and three equalled, no greater recommendation for the condition of the track on Soldier's Field could be asked.

Should the Intercollegiates come here again, followers of track athletics would have an additional treat in store for them, for the Olympic trials, to choose the runners who will represent America at the great Olympic games this Summer, will be something worth watching.

Good Financial Move.

The best athletes in the country will gather here to participate. Ordinarily track followers have the opportunity of seeing only collegians in action, but in this case, both would be running and the results would be the survival of the fittest and some wonderful performances.

In addition there is probably no other city in proportion to size, that so well patronizes track athletics as does Boston. At Philadelphia at the times of the Intercollegiate games there is no attendance to have been very small in comparison to the audiences that gather on Soldiers Field, and without doubt the A. A. U. will profit quite more in a financial way by holding the games in the Stadium, than by going to any other city.

The only thing gained from the admission fees will be used to defray in part the expenses of the American team in its trip abroad.

Freshmen Hockey Schedule.

The athletic committee at Harvard has drilled the freshmen hockey team schedule of seven games and the varsity fencing team schedule of seven meets.

They are as follows:

FRESHMEN HOCKEY.

January 17—St. Mary's at Southboro.
January 20—Stone School in the Stadium.
January 27—Arlington High School in Stadium.
February 3—Milton Academy at Milton.
February 7—Andover in the Stadium.
February 14—St. Paul's School at Concord, N. H.
February 17—Yale 1915 at New Haven.

FENCING SCHEDULE.

February 9—Pennsylvania at Philadelphia.
February 10—New York Athletic Club.
February 15—Columbia at Cambridge.
February 24—Yale at New Haven.
March 2—Army at West Point.
March 23—Trials of intercollegiate meet at West Point.
March 29 and 30—Finals of intercollegiate meet at New York.

At the same meeting the appointment of George Faulkner Plimpton of Buffalo, N. Y., assistant manager of the varsity football team was approved.

At the present time W. M. E. Whitelock of Baltimore, Md., is manager and will be next Fall, so that Plimpton's term as manager will not come until the season of 1913.

CHAMPIONSHIP GAMES FOR BROOKLINE GYM

The Brookline Gymnasium Association will hold a series of championship games, open to all amateur residents of the town, starting January 10, and continuing for sixteen evenings up to and including March 12. The regular gymnastic events are on the program, with wrestling and swimming events in addition. Entries are to be made at the Municipal Gymnasium not later than three days before a contest. Intending contestants are notified that the rules of the various events are subject to change, and for any information on the subject they should apply to the secretary of the games committee, Municipal Gymnasium, Pierce street, Brookline.

OFFICERS ELECTED BY EASTERN YACHT CLUB

The following officers have been elected by the Eastern Yacht Club: Commodore, Robert Treat Paine, 2d.; vice-commodore, H. M. Sears; rear commodore, Francis M. Whitehouse; secretary, Henry Taggard; treasurer, Patrick T. Jackson; council at large, G. A. Goddard and Frank B. McQuesten; regatta committee, Louis M. Clark, H. A. Frothingham, C. J. JACK JOHNSON PICKS SANTRY FOR REFEREE

CHICAGO, Jan. 10.—Jack Johnson today announced that the old time featherweight star, as his choice for referee of his championship battle with Jim Flynn. He thinks Santry is about the best to be had for an important fight. Jack Curley, when told of Johnson's preference, said: "Santry is a capable fellow and a capable official, but a man of national reputation must be picked for this match." Jack Welsh of San Francisco, Ed W. Smith of Chicago or Pat Masterson would get my approval.

O'ROURKE MASTER OF BATTLING NELSON

SPRINGFIELD, Mc., Jan. 10.—Outboxed through eight of the ten rounds or of bout before members of the Springfield A. C., Battling Nelson lost a popular decision here to Tommy O'Rourke of Memphis in the greatest ring engagement ever staged in Springfield and one of the greatest ever hosted by the club.

Though Nelson carried the milling to his opponent at all stages of the game, O'Rourke displayed cleverness and ability, clearly demonstrating his superiority over the former world's lightweight champion.

ENGLISH HIGH CALLS OFF LAWRENCE MEET

Manager Webster Kelley of the Boston English High School has announced that the dual track meet with Lawrence High, scheduled for February 2 at Lawrence, has been called off. Coach Fowler and all the team has a hard enough schedule without the Lawrence meet.

CHRISTOPHER IS READY TO ROLL

John Christopher is on the warpath. He visited the AMERICAN office yesterday and stated that he was in New York last week and did not make any appointment with Archie Walsh for Saturday a tenspoon. After he got back from New York Saturday night he went to the Chesson Square alley and looked for Archie, but was told he was not there.

"I am willing to roll anybody, especially Poehler," Christopher continued. "Have him come up at once with his money. I am willing to roll the best of three games in a ten-string match by e.gt. pins and was surprised to roll the other ten strings at the Boylston alleys, but he refused to do it.

"I would be glad to go down to Maine anytime and take some of Hoover's game and I think it would be a cinch for me to beat anyone of the Portland boys. I am ready to put up any amount of money that I can get up and will get it, or any other fellow no matter who he is. It makes no difference to me."

Notes of the Alleys

The postponed match between the Osgood Class and Northwestern of the Mystic Valley Class League will be rolled tonight. The latter do not expect much trouble from the Osgood aggregation although the latter is full of surprises and can never tell.

The fourth annual ball of the Laundry League will be held at Paine Memorial Hall, Appleton street, on February 29. A big time is looked for, as the committee is in charge. Following are the officers elected: R. Miller, chairman of the committee; J. Carney, president; J. Barnes, vice-president; E. Tellberg, secretary, and A. Gosselin, treasurer.

W. W. Kneeland with 10,166 for 100 non-consecutive strings is leading in the Motor boat contest now running at the Adams square alleys. The contest seems to be very popular and many good bowlers are rolling from 9,000 up. The next men in order are: C. M. Boyle, 9,858; W. A. Anthony, 9,669; George T. Merhley, 9,518; M. S. Rowman, 9,391.

Crown of the Puritans is hitting the pins at a terrific pace of late. He got 118, 93 and 120 at the Elite alleys and the following night he rolled 97, 108, 145, tying the high string of the Suburban League.

The Circulation Department of the AMERICAN will run up against the real thing when it meets a quintet represented by the Lockers' Club at the Boylston alleys to-morrow night at 8 o'clock. Manager Ed Riley is sure that his team will take the champions into camp, and after glancing at the figures the latter turned in his prediction holds good. Keenan, Gerley, Jacobson, McCormack and Keaney will represent the Circulation Department, while Tucker, Richardson, Riley, Given and Dwyer will represent the Cashiers.

The American Bowling Congress has barred the "dead" ball. This ball is composed of two substances and weighs sixteen pounds. The ball always lands in between the first and third pin, and is a deadly strike ball.

Out in Cincinnati they have a woman named Mrs. Huber, who considers bowling a good weight reducing sport, and she is some chicken, too. She is rather stout, but was able to capture the championship of the fair sex from Mrs. Fred Londy.

CITY BOWLERS IN BIG GAMES

"We're off on the third lap," is the slogan of the City League "fans." After having played each other at and away from home the eight teams will begin the third session to-night.

Elite rolls against Adams Square in the feature match of the night. This match is sure to furnish plenty of food for the "fans," and some exciting work is expected.

Adams Square, which was going at a good clip the opening of the season, has fallen off miserably in the last three matches, having won but one point. Many are unaware of the fact that there is a reason for this. Adams Square is without a single rooter, and rooters play a big part in the winning of matches.

Elite has never been very successful away from home, and whether or not the team will be better to-night remains to be seen. In the match against Murray & Irwin last week the team showed wonderful improvement, and the followers of Billy Ferris's boys are confident that they will be able to take the Adams Square team into camp to-night.

Lang and Rouse Off Form.

Hayward meets Carruth and should prove easy picking for the latter team. Carruth, which is leading the league by five points, is looking for its chance, and will never get a better one than it will to-night. The followers of Hanover street have been expecting better work from them to-night. Harry O'Brien, the idol of the Carruth "fans," since his return to the game, will be the chief attraction.

Bob Pike's lads are confident that they will be able to give the leaders a good fight for the honors to-night. With Nims, "Cannon Ball" Upham and Arthur Shaw going at their best, it is no wonder that the Carruth team will have to travel at a good clip.

Chauncy will undoubtedly cause Jack Sheehan's Boylston quintet a hard match at the Chauncy alleys to-night. Boylston has shown wonderful improvement of late, and is steadily climbing in the league race.

"Pets" in for Beating.

Warren Brown and Andy Armstrong, together with Bill Galway, make up one of the cleverest trio of rollers in the city, and with them going good Boylston should not have much trouble in landing at least three of the points.

Up until Monday night's match with Carruth, Chauncy had been traveling at a swift pace, and many thought that Beatty's boys would stop until they landed in the first division. To-night Chauncy is due for a surprise party, and it will be

Women Losing Sentiment

By DOROTHY DIX

I'VE had a curious experience lately. One day I chanced to hear a discussion among three college girls, who talked of life with a big L. They all expected to elevate the world and were very serious in their views of the uplift they would give, but as nearly as I could make out from the consensus of opinions expressed, the two things that they regarded as the greatest calamity that could befall a woman were, first, to get married, and, secondly, to be tied down to a home.

The next day I met a beautiful and wealthy young woman, who was a reigning belle in society, who calmly told me that she had broken her engagement to the young man to whom she was engaged to be married. She gave as a reason for doing this that she had been to see one of her girl friends, who had been married a couple of years, and who looked faded and weary, and when she found wrestling with a crying baby, no servants, and a husband who was cross because there was no dinner. "Of course, I'm awfully fond of Jack," the girl went on, "but I took one look at Lulu and one at myself, and I came home and wrote Jack that matrimony was too strenuous for me."

The third day I heard somebody ask a working girl if she ever intended to marry, to which she replied, with emphasis, "Never. Catch me giving up my pocketbook and latch key for any man that lives."

These three groups of women may not represent their sex as a whole, but they do undoubtedly represent the three types of women of to-day—the intellectual, the gay and frivolous, and the working woman, and the thing that struck me so forcibly was that all of them displayed an absolute lack of sentiment.

Various Reasons

The college bred woman did not want to marry, because it would interfere with her career. The society girl did not want to marry because she would lose her beauty and have to worry about servants. The business woman did not want to marry because she would have to give up her liberty and her salary.

All three travelled by different roads, but they reached the same goal. To them matrimony was a life sentence, and home a prison, and it was plain that if love, ever came into their lives, it would be in the nature of a surprise party. It was nothing that they counted on. They were not on the lookout for the Fairy Prince. They were dodging him.

Of course, this may be rather an extreme illustration of the modern dislike abroad among women, but nothing is more obvious than that women are growing less sentimental all of the time, and it begins to look as if the woman who lives only in her emotions, and who views the facts of life only through a halo of romance, would soon be an extinct as the dodo.

A thousand little proofs of the decadence of sentiment in women force themselves on one's attention. Take novels, for instance, which are written mostly by women, and for women, and which chiefly reflect women's point of view at every period. Compare the Rollonbys of our grandmothers' day with the Trilbys of to-day, and you have called me the well-known nightwatch chimpoot. "Miss Ellis."

"Well, what?" said the editor, "Now, I'm nothing of the kind; and it's confoundedly awkward, because, you see, I'm a coal merchant."

Even the broken-hearted heroine, and the heroine who suffered and was strong, have gone out of fashion because women are no longer sympathetic with that state of mind. What interests women in fiction is a heroine who says things plainly and squarely, and perhaps unconventionally, and who grapples with problems of real life. She must be involved in a love story, of course, but the love story is a side issue, not the whole thing.

The theatre, which is also largely supported by women, shows the same indifference to sentiment. The most successful plays of late years have been the problem and the play of action, and not those that depended on sentiment. Women are the most enthusiastic Shavites on the theatre, while April is always to the intellect and not to the heart.

Two other straws that show which way a woman's mind moves are the facts that women have ceased to swoon, and almost cease to cry. The women of to-day is not so sentimental that she could be

A Lesson on Walking. From the Paris Shop Girl

By GABY DESLYS

This Season Calls for a Burden of Furs.

I WONDER if it is here with you in America as it is in Paris—that women, and men, too, for that matter, have fashions in walking.

Sometimes it is the mode to affect the walk of a Grenadier, and in a few months something will happen which will change the fashion entirely, so that you have to appear to glide or slide over the ground. One season the French woman affects tremendous vitality, even when she hasn't got it, for it is a mistake to believe all French women are really vivacious. They aren't, but all of them can pretend, and they do that much better than American women do, though the American woman really has the vitality.

Doesn't Like to Walk

But I was writing of walking and of the fashions in walking. I do not like to walk at all, though I do it daily, because it is said to be so healthy. I get plenty of daily exercise in the theatre, and outside of that I prefer driving in a comfortable carriage or an auto, but when I do walk I am afraid I do not faithfully carry out the doctor's precepts to carry myself very straight, breathe deeply and walk briskly.

Very few women who walk fast do it nicely. Usually they swing their arms, which is odious and most ungraceful, and a fashion which comes of poor excessive American vitality, and which the French woman does not care to worry about.

I notice it a great deal over here and the best dressed and most elegant looking women are often the most wide awakes.

The Parisian, even the little Midinette, the little shop girl, walks dalintly, and she does not swing her arms around, nor does she make very long steps. Of course, our French women are not, as a rule, as tall as you Americans, but even the tall ones are much more conscious of their gait and manner in public, and a little less conscious of their clothes.

Always Looks Neat

Even the bodily paid shop girl wears good clothes, however cheap, and somehow always manages to look neat on the street. I think this is because she is very careful about the way she does up her hair.

Midinette walk about during the lunch hour at noon; that is where they get their name from, and they don't wear hats, even in Winter.

Then they are always very trim as to costume. Even the girl who is quite a poor little frock, it fits well, and the bottom of the skirt is well cut, and does not sag. As you go up the financial scale here, you will find just these same characteristics emphasized. Daintiness in manner and bearing, sometimes a little affection, but a great deal of care for one's clothes and the fit of the costume, and carefully adjusted hat and veil, and I may as well say hair, too, for a curl pinned on here or there helps the general effect.

As to the walk. This season it is quite a languid walk, and one almost drags one's feet, because of tight frocks and a burden of furs. Next season we may see our women swinging along with something very near a swagger. I remember once it was the fashion to walk with a most contemptive air, and every one did it, and the most robust looking women, which was quite funny.

Here in America most women have a tendency to grow stout after, well I won't say what age, because it is always offensive. These women ought to walk a great deal, and the more energy they put into their walk the better for them, and the thinner they will get.

But nearly every one of them driving or riding about, and it's the very thin ones who rush up and down the avenue.

That is always the way. The fatter you are the less you are inclined to exercise, while thin people continue to lose flesh they cannot well spare.

The value of his example is not in the amount of fortune he accumulated. It is in this:

1. He began late.
2. But he began with a definite plan.
3. He kept at it for a quarter of a century.
4. And to-day, being over sixty-five, he is a happy-hearted gentleman, still at work, and more full of life and vigor than scores of youths who sit in the park and wish the sun would keep out of their eyes.

If you want to know a little more about him it may prove of interest.

He is his own boss, with a small business that pays a fair profit.

He hires twelve men, pays them good wages and works with them.

He tells them, now and then, that it pays to live with a plan in mind.

"No one," he says, "can help or hinder you but yourself.

"Never expect to leap into success. A man has to crawl to it on his hands and knees.

"Don't grumble about the boss and the work to YOURSELF. Grumble to me. If either is wrong, I'll put it straight for you. If neither is wrong, I'll put you straight, or get another man in your place.

"If you think you are worth more wages, show me why. I'm quick to see good things, and I'm always looking for good work."

Now, his history and his philosophy show the American boy, though he has to work until he is a man of forty, he has a chance. IF HE WANTS TO TAKE IT.

The famous Petash and Perlmutter ("Abe" and "Mawruss") stories by Montague Glass are a regular feature of the Sunday AMERICAN

At Forty

By THOMAS TAPPER

I.

AMBITION is a great thing.

So is each one of its near relations! Industry, Perseverance, Faith, and all the rest.

The American Boy may believe that there is a great chance for all, but as he looks about he will wonder what has happened to so many who, at forty or so, are failures.

Just to show him what it means to be Forty, and what chance an American Boy has when he gets to be that age, let him read this. He will then judge more kindly, or, at least, less severely.

II.

To begin with, men of Forty are as different from one another as boys of twenty are.

At Forty, some have given up and are willing to take things as they come. Others, who have probably carried heavy burdens up to this age, are just ready to begin; full of fight, and are waiting for an opening.

Can a man begin at Forty? He certainly can. A man at Forty, who is not a physical wreck, has not only a chance, but a fine one. There may be less elasticity to him, but there should be better judgment. He may not plan so big as he would have done at twenty, but he will plan more wisely.

The rules of HIS game, of the man of Forty, are amazingly simple:

He must be optimistic, and carry no meanness with his freight.

He must be anxious for promotion by his employer (if he has one) as if he were working on his first job.

Most important of all, his initiative must be in fine working order.

Do you know this word Initiative? Five syllables. The letter I occurs four times in it, as if to show that, it is the great word for a man to use about himself; the great I word.

But is it not better to talk about a man who solved the problem at Forty?

III.

Let us call him Paul Seaforth. He is now sixty-five years old, and still pushing forward.

At Forty he found his chance. Up to that age he had carried the burdens of other people. All he could earn and do was for them.

But he did it all willingly, kept his good nature unimpaired, was always helpful, open-minded and strong enough to work without complaining.

On his Fortieth birthday he said to himself: "I may live to be seventy, or I may not, but I am going to learn a little every day for the next thirty years, or as many as I live, and I am going to save a little to ease the burden later on.

"This year (the Fortieth) I shall put aside whatever money I can, to remain at compound interest until my sixty-fifth year; or, for twenty-five years.

"In my forty-first year I will save, in like manner, the money to remain at interest for twenty-four years.

"And so on, until the savings of my sixty-fourth year are made. On whatever there is in hand then I will live, without work, if I want to, or with work, if I prefer to live."

Now, I do not know how much he has put away, for the twenty-five years of his saving. It does not matter.

The value of his example is not in the

Why He Howled

HE was a poor, miserable-looking dog, and the stranger's heart was filled with pity. For the dog was howling, and it was only too evident that he was suffering pain. So he asked the tired rustic who lounged near why the dog howled.

"I'm?" asked the rustic. "He's just lazy, that's all."

"But laziness doesn't make a dog howl, surely?" queried the benevolent one.

"Does 'im," said the tired owner. "Only lazy."

"But how," queried the persistent questioner—"how can laziness make him howl?"

"Well, you see," said the rural lounger, "that pore dog is sittin' on some real, tough thistles, and he's too lazy to get off, so he just sits there and howls 'cause it hurts so."

RECOVERY UNEXPECTED.

Doctor—You will be glad to know that your husband will almost certainly recover.

Wife—Oh, doctor, what shall I do?

Doctor—Why, what do you mean? Aren't you anxious that your husband should get well?

Wife—Yes, only when you said just week you didn't think he would live another week. I went and sold all his clothes.

DIDN'T CARE A FIG

"For two weeks," said the returned explorer at the entertainment he was without food; but one day I found a calendar."

"What good did that do you?" asked the clown.

"I immediately ate the dates," was the unblushing reply.

To-day's Complete Short Story

JOE TOLLERDAY came down the steps of the street car at a run, and, while he waited to drop off, favored the conductor with a parting wink.

"Well, you ain't caught the strike fever yet!" he remarked facetiously.

The conductor regarded him with a friendly grin.

"You'll find the last car running as usual," he returned sunnily. "Always do for a week. Face tells the tale. Had a good time?"

"Extra!" laughed Joe. "But, between you an' me, old sport!——"

HERSHFIELD

Claude and Rosamond naturally rejoice to see Desmond and his allies charging the battery of sand camels figured by the Italian sculptor. The villain believes that he is charging into mortal combat, but he goes ahead, nevertheless. Desmond cares little for his life when he has set his mind upon the capture of proud Rosamond.

Zing! goes Desmond into the camels of the sand. Up rises a cloud of blinding dust and for the moment the villain is blinded. Desmond' necessity is Claude's opportunity, and our hero gleefully tells Rosamond that in a moment he will have the accumulated in his power. And then a short shrift for Desmond, on whose head all civilized governments have set a price.

Even the fowls of the air seem to come to the aid of Desmond. Disturbed by the sudden onrush, a flock of pigeons circles wildly around in the air and their wings blown away the sand from the eyes of the international crook. Evidently Desmond was born under a lucky star, for no matter what happens he always seems to survive somehow or other.

Desmond, with the weather lore accumulated when he was a youth in the country, knows that the birds which rose in the sandstorm are a sign of rain, and hopes this will help him to escape, sure enough the rain does come down and the desert rapidly becomes a woebegone place. Desmond evidently should be in the Weather Office.

As the camel sinks into the sand, which is now softened by the rain, the sagacious beast decides to take on its regular two-day supply of water. Opening its capacious mouth it lets the rain pour down its throat and pass on to Claude. Desmond's command that it dash out to escape any possible pursuit.

"I'm the boy!" cries Desperate Desmond, "but I'm not a bullfrog!" If he were, the villain might breathe freely. The swamp which the rain has created in the desert. As it is he is completely anchored and cannot dodge the oncoming Italian troops. Claude and Rosamond in the meantime are jubilant, and to-morrow you will see strange developments.

Do You Know That—

The most expensive act of damage ever committed by a railway worker was that of an Italian navvy employed in the construction of a tunnel through one of the mountains in the Black Forest. Having a grudge against his foreman, he succeeded one night in altering the position of the stakes which marked the course of the work. The excavators were working upon the tunnel in two sections, one from the north and one from the south. Owing to the shifting of the stakes the sections, instead of being directed to the same point, were found to be twenty-six feet apart when they reached the middle of the mountain. The northern half of the tunnel had, therefore, to be entirely reconstructed, at a cost of $800,000.

"PERHAPS I'll save my money and speculate, too," Virginia said jestingly.

"That is the way I began," he replied to this. "After I scraped together a couple of hundred dollars, I plunged on my own judgment and found myself on the way to fame and fortune."

He moved his chair closer to hers.

"But we mustn't talk shop all the time," he said, his voice softening. "Why can't you bring your sister and her young man to meet me and have dinner in my apartments some evening? That would be very formal and no one could object to that. I do want to show you some attention, Miss Blaine. Really, it gives me so much genuine delight to think that we may be real friends, that I am eager to bring that about. You will think it over, won't you?"

He reached out his hand and laid it on the back of hers on the arm of her chair.

"You know," he said with a half sigh, "I get terribly lonely sometimes. The people who pretend to like me so much, and who shower me with invitations, are always after my money or my help in one financial matter or the other. The women, among the rich, would sell themselves at the slightest touch of fear of poverty. But you're strong and fine and not spoiled, and I am so glad that I met you and employed you."

Virginia withdrew her hand.

"I'll think it over, Mr. Stafford," she replied. "And now I must be going home. I am the assistant chef as well as the head of my little family. My Fanny has been working all day in a department store; her young man is coming for her to take her to the theatre. Mr. James Gilley will rest himself to death if they are not the first people inside of the theatre."

"Jimmie must be a wonder," laughed Stafford. "We must have him to dinner surely. I know I will get a lot of quiet fun out of him."

He went with her to the door and, as she did not object, he put on his hat and walked down Fifth avenue with her.

They turned away from the boulevard of wealth and, going east, came upon the houses of the humble. In front of a dilapidated but time-worn old brownstone house they stopped.

Stafford held out his hand.

"Good-bye," he said.

She took the proffered clasp, said good-bye, and turned and ran up the stairs.

Stafford's New Campaign

WITH the same qualities that had brought him to the top of the financial life of the richest and greatest city in the country, Stafford began to win his way with Virginia. It was not the work of a day or of a week. Their constant business relations afforded him ample opportunity for laying siege to the heart of the girl. His personal reputation was of the cleanest. His private life had been a wholesome one. The only thing against his chances was Virginia's own attitude. She did not love him.

The desire to win this girl, upon whom his heart was set, obsessed Stafford. He was no man to give up a fight. He had never given up one. Success had been the one word in all his life, and he intended to be successful in this campaign wherein more than money was at stake.

Virginia's modesty and goodness appealed to Stafford all the more strongly because he realized that, unlike nine hundred and ninety-nine out of a thousand girls who would pretend to love him just for the sake of his wealth, she was honest with herself and with him.

His knew that Virginia fully realized how deeply he was in love with her. He could not conceal his heart hunger when they were alone, but she never allowed him to approach her as a lover. With skill she managed so that they would never be really quite alone. And all the while she kept at her work with such fidelity and capability that Stafford could not have well have parted with her.

She became an important element in his financial operations, and in the course of six months his associates found that they could transact important business matters with Virginia Blaine. "Miss Virginia," as she was called over the wires, became known in Wall street.

As confidential operator or clerk to Stafford at the hotel, she stood between him and the scores of petty annoyers and sycophants who pester the rich to extract wealth by one excuse or another.

She found her pay of $25 a week ample enough to care for both Fanny and herself, and her heart was glad when she decided that, despite Stafford's attentions, her new position was secure, and she made Fanny give up her position in the department store.

Fanny Goes to School Again

The younger sister would have no more spells of weakness from long standing behind a counter and constant hurrying of inconsiderate women customers.

Fanny obeyed every wish of her elder sister, who was both mother and sister to her. She took up her school books once again, and, although not of a studious nature, she made up her mind to study, and she did study faithfully, although bored to death all the time and thinking of Jimmie and the prospects of that needed raise more than half the time.

But there was plenty of time before her, in the opinion of Virginia, and she jealously watched over the younger girl to help and guide her so that the promise she had made to her mother would be kept and Fanny should see some of the real happiness in the world.

"I almost envy your love for Jimmie," Virginia told the girl one night. "I have never felt it come into my heart. But if it comes, I shall give my love freely to the man who has won me."

"Even to a poor man?" asked Fanny.

"Yes, to a poor man."

"And would you give up riches and luxury to marry a poor man?"

"Yes."

Gee, Virgie, but you've got a lot of nerve to do that," exclaimed Fanny. "As much as I love Jimmie, I do certainly love the things that the wealthy people have. Why shouldn't a girl who has to fight tooth and nail for just enough to eat, and a place to sleep grab at a chance that meant comfort and luxury? Would it help me any if I left a job in a department store to do the washing, cooking and scrubbing for a man I loved? I might love the man, but I sure wouldn't love the work."

Virginia laughed at Fanny's philosophy of life.

"I Don't Love Him," She Said

"And yet, Fanny, she reminded, "as soon as Jimmie gets that raise, into matrimony you'll plunge, and I'll make one guess that you will be very happy and work hard at home to make Jimmie just as happy as you are."

"All the same, Virgie," Fanny said significantly, "if you have chance to marry Mr. Stafford you would be foolish to neglect it."

"But I don't love him," said Virginia. What's the matter with him? Is he arrogant and haughty?"

"No; he is very gentle and kind."

"Does he make love to other women?"

"No."

"Is he honorable?"

"He is the soul of honor."

"Then, in the name of heaven, what kind of a man could you fall in love with?" demanded Fanny.

"I don't know, Fanny," Virginia replied with a sigh.

"You like him?"

"Y-es-s."

"Virginia, if you ARE my big sister and my little mother at the same time you're a fool."

Virginia flushed.

"He has invited us to dinner in his suite," Virginia told her, remembering her promise made to Stafford that she would dine with him.

"Oh!" cried Fanny, delighted. "Can we take my James?"

"Jimmie is invited, too."

"When do we meet the wonderful Mr. Stafford?"

"To-morrow night."

Fanny clasped her hands and held them aloft in an attitude of ecstasy.

"Say, Virgie," she said finally, "maybe he'll send us all home in his touring car. Won't the neighbors be envious?"

To Be Continued To-morrow.

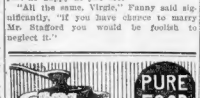
To Develop the Bust

To Beauty Editor: I am so ashamed of my thin bust that I want to ask you if there is any harmless way to develop it. My hips and the rest of my body are right for the present styles and I do not want to get stout, but my bust is so flat that I would try anything that gave hope of even three or four inches development. MARY S.

The only thing I know of that will develop the bust without increasing the size of the hips, or without putting on flesh where not needed, is a prescription put up by The Dr. Kelly Co., especially for small and undeveloped breasts. It is the discovery of a woman physician whose practice was largely among her own sex and in most cases increases the bust measure four to six inches in a month. Send 50c to the Dr. Kelly Co., Dept. 27 A. C. Buffalo, N. Y., and they will send you a trial package of the treatment without charge. This is said to be of great value in cases of arrested development of the bust and will give a full, beautiful form without anyone knowing that the treatment was used.

Many mothers have told me that after the baby had been weaned the breasts became flabby and shrunken, but the use of Dr. Kelly's prescription made them full and firm. Do not use pads or bust forms, as they never look natural and have a bad effect upon the general health. Neither would I recommend ordinary fish bulliers or tonics, as they increase the hips and limbs, and with the present styles the form should be slender everywhere except a generously developed bust.



Pour hot chocolate sauce over slices of DRAKE'S SPONGE CAKE—a delightful dessert that saves the bother and expense of baking.

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS STOCKS ARE IN BETTER DEMAND

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—Wall street had completely recovered from the shock and effect of the Equitable building fire today and a steady tone prevailed at the opening of the market. Dealing in stocks held in the vaults of the Equitable and Mercantile Safe Deposit Company was suspended, however.

A better demand was in evidence at the outset and some substantial gains were made. Union Pacific advanced a half to 163⅞, and advances of about the same amount were made in Reading, Third Avenue Traction and Canadian Pacific. The feature was an upturn of 1⅞ in Lehigh Valley, which sent this issue to 183¾. After opening unchanged U. S. Steel common declined fractionally, but later recovered this loss and gained half a point. Amalgamated Copper and Southern Railway were ½ higher. Erie Common was unchanged.

The Curb was quiet and steady. American and Canadian Pacific in London were quiet, but rulled above New York parity.

STATE ST. NEWS FOR INVESTORS

It is believed that the total cotton crop for the year 1911-12 will be in the neighborhood of 15,500,000 bales. This estimate is based upon the experience of past years. Cotton men said after the Census Bureau issued its report, that there will probably be a million more bales turned out before the close of the season.

Otto H. Kahn of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., sailed for Europe to-day on the steamship Lusitania, to be gone three or four weeks days. He will spend his time in London and Paris. One rumor is that he has gone abroad in connection with Walsach reorganization. Another is that a foreign security issue for the Union Pacific or Southern Pacific may be intended.

As iron and steel prices are now practically on an export basis, men in the trade are not showing much apprehension over legislation cutting the tariff. They are making a little money as it is.

Some of the best-posted men are afraid there will be a runaway market in copper. One of the biggest bull markets ever known is expected by them. It is predicted that when copper securities rise they will take the rest of the market with them.

The bear element in Wall Street in their attack on Union Pacific yesterday spread the rumor that many valuable records of that road had been destroyed in the Equitable Building fire. Now that the structure is destroyed, a new sky scraper will be erected to replace it. At the time of the blaze the Life Assurance records were stored in duplicate in other places.

The Steel Trust report of unfilled orders on hand will be made public today. Some people on State Street are pessimistic in regard to Steel because of the low price at which a large volume of business has been taken.

It is stated that there is no intention of paying an extra dividend to United States Rubber shareholders in general, but that a profit-sharing plan is being worked out under which employes may buy common and get an extra dividend of 3 per cent. annually, if they hold the stock for five years and stay that long in the corporation's employ.

GOT A MINUTE? HOW MANY TIMES SHOULD A WOMAN MARRY? Lillian Russell's fourth husband raises the question whether it is respectable for a woman to have an unlimited number of matrimonial affairs. Several women of distinction have answered the question for the Boston Sunday AMERICAN, among them the beautiful Miss Russell herself. Won't you want to read it?

DELIVERIES DELAYED BY FIRE.

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—Governors of the New York stock exchange to-day passed a resolution giving the law committee full power to act on everything connected with stock deliveries which may be interfered with because of the Equitable Building fire. Deliveries may still be made by mutual consent, but committee will not interfere after.

HAVE THE FOOD BROUGHT STRAIGHT TO YOUR DINING ROOM ON A RAILROAD TRAIN. And don't say it cannot be done, for it is being done every day in the homes of suburban Paris. M. Henri Rignaud, the electrical engineer, began it. M. Rigaud built the railroad from the kitchen. Then he dismissed a housemaid, reducing his household expenses. He presses a button and poof! in comes the railroad train with things to eat. Read about it and see the pictures, in the Sunday AMERICAN.

GARDEN SHOW IS RECORD BREAKER

By J. C. KERRISON.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—Should one attempt to do justice to all the fine things that he sees at the show in Madison Square Garden he would need more than one full page of the AMERICAN. Never has there been a greater or more complete display of motor vehicles and accessories than the one that is gathered under the roof of the Garden at this time; it is complete in every respect.

There are numerous good things, both in mechanical design and construction as well as in body, and it can really be said that this year more than ever finds the finished article in motor vehicles.

The many handsome displays of famous trophies at several of the booths attract great crowds of racing enthusiasts, at the Marmon endeavor, where Frank Wiss is always to be found, are trophies won by Harroun and Dawson in the 500-mile sweepstakes last Memorial Day for first and fifth places; the famous Wheeler-Schebler trophy, Remy trophy and the Cobe cup won by Dawson at the speedway; the Atlanta Speedway trophy, the Jegson cup captured by the Marmon in the fight car case at Santa Monica, Cal., numerous prizes won at the Los Angeles motor-drome and many other cups and trophies.

Torpedo Limousine.

One of the Marmon cars is a torpedo limousine, with a single side door at the left. The rear seat is wide enough for two, and there is a seat parallel with the driver's which swings back out of the way to let the driver in. The body is by Demidson of Buffalo. One of the points is a light, which comes up to show the step when the door is opened. Burlwyn maple is the wood used for panels inside. The car is odd and pleasing.

How well the product of the General Motors is being shown can best be seen by a walk through the Garden. In the main floor, one finds the Buick holding the leading position by right of being the largest single manufacturer in the world and displaying a really wonderful line which Harry Noyes and Jack Johnson say is the best in the world.

To the right of the Buick is the Oldsmobile, making its fourteenth annual bow to the public, having reached a development of refinement and finish that leaves nothing to be desired. Further down is the Cadillac, one of the most talked of cars of the year, on account of the scientific progress it represents and its distinct advancement in construction. The Oakland line is across the aisle, one of the popular six-cylinder cars, and showing one of the unique models of the year—a single seater, three-passenger roadster with a turtleback of rakish design.

This company has also on exhibition a group of thirty cups won in various competitive contests. On the other side of the hall is the Elmore, a car that has had a fine two-cycle field for years. The Marquette car is exhibited on the first floor and represents the best features formerly embodied in the Rainier and Welch. The Carter car, the well-known friction drive type, is also shown on this floor.

New Self-Starter.

The Studebakers show the Ex M. F. and Flanders cars in various styles and models, and this year make a hit.

One of the latest of self-starting devices to be found at the show is that on the Inter-State, whose Boston manager, V. A. Charles, is doing such good work here.

The electric engine starter is simple in construction and perfect in action. It will run the engine forty minutes, if desired. It requires less than one-seventh of one horse-power to keep it fully efficient, in addition to starting the motor. It supplies current for the illumination of the electric lamps. Electric switch buttons used from driver's seat indicate the overload performance of every function named. Constant efficiency is automatically maintained.

Every detail of the Inter-State has been given careful consideration. Being manufactured in a modern, well-equipped factory by responsible responsible concern, the ownership of an Inter-State brings a feeling of pride and assurance that cannot be yours if you buy a cheap, associated car.

A feature of the Overland exhibit is the polished chassis of the forty-five-horsepower car, the largest and most powerful member of the Overland family. That John W. Willis has nothing to hide in Overland construction is demonstrated by his public exhibition of this chassis with a cut-out motor.

Working Parts Exposed.

All working parts are exposed to view, as one side of the cylinders and cranks are cut away. The motor is lighted by electric lights and is continually kept in operation by an electric battery.

All metal parts are beautifully polished and the chassis is a picture drawing cards at the show. The construction of the cylinders, connecting rods, crank-shaft, etc., are easily discernible and readily inspected by prospective purchasers of Overland cars.

While the appearance of a motor-car is either preserved or marred by the location of the gasoline tank, provision has been made a part of the design of the Stoddard-Dayton car for a proper place for everything. The engineers have aimed to locate all accessories or equipments so that they can be reached quickly and without decommoding the passengers.

Therefore, they have sought to locate most of it so as to hide it from view. The gasoline tank is behind the dash of 1912, therefore, present a very artistic appearance. The tool box, which is also provided with one thing or another slapped on it, is under the rear seat.

The Studebakers show their E M F and Flanders cars in various styles and models and this year make a hit with a chassis that is cut out from front to rear, thus giving one an idea of every individual working part in the car, the gear case and the motor. It is an object lesson idea and one that will surely be copied by others. Retail Manager George Phelps is here from Boston and has done excellent work.

At the Hudson booth where A. B. Hendry and Jack Erskine, on behalf of Boston, are to be found, is a unique skeleton of the Hudson "33."

With the exception of the engine, the entire driving mechanism is shown, for the entire body has been stripped from it, making it one of the most fascinating cars at the show.

At the front of the "skeleton" is the engine connecting rods, the crank-case, crank-shaft and the fly-wheel, which connects the latter with the multiple disc clutch. The operation of the transmission is shown and so is the function of the universal joint and the differential in the rear axle.

The "skeleton" of the car beneaks the genius of Howard E. Coffin, the leading American motor car engineer, who has charge of the Hudson.

Among the prominent visitors at the show this morning were Henry Ford, who a year ago achieved such a signal victory in the Detroit-Windsor-Detroit race, and who is making his own show in the new addition to the Garden. He is the guest of George W. Bennett, of the Willys-Overland Company. President Benjamin Briscoe, of the United States Motor Company, and a host of others.

NEW CENSUS ATLAS OF THE WORLD
PICTORIAL AND DESCRIPTIVE

GREATLY REDUCED, ACTUAL SIZE 11½x15 INCHES

A Few Suggestions About This Special Atlas Offer for American Readers Only!

THIS ATLAS is entirely new, from cover to cover, and has no superior. Produced at great cost to mark the beginning of the new census period, it comes into the great family of Atlases along entirely new lines and clearly out of the rut. It contains everything worth while to be found in any other Atlas (in the way of maps and descriptive matter), but in addition thereto it brings within its scope the vital statistics of the world, and particularly of the United States, as taken direct from the Government Census Reports of 1910 and the latest Foreign Official Reports. Its maps of all states, territories and countries of the world are extra large and entirely new, all printed in colors.

THE NEW CENSUS ATLAS OF THE WORLD contains over 100 Maps and Diagrams in colors; the Flags of all Nations; the Arms of all Nations; Comparative sizes of all European Nations; Military Forces of the World; Military Strength of the World; Comparative Sizes of the United States Possessions; Land Elevations; Ocean Depths; Rainfall of the United States; Conservation Maps of the United States Forests; Productive Areas of Principal Commercial Staples of the World; Statistical Diagram showing Growth of the United States; Steamship Routes; Maps of all States, Territories and Countries of the World.

24 PAGES OF 1910 POPULATION STATISTICS

There are over 100 beautiful half-tone pictures illustrating the descriptive matter pertaining to all countries of the globe. These pictures are strictly up to date, showing Wireless Telegraphy; Reapers by Wireless; Types of the Aerial Craft; Comparative Sizes of Aerial Navies; Progress of Panama Canal; Rubber Growing; Tobacco Curing; Types of the Modern Floating Cities, etc.

The Statistical Department is replete with information. All census figures are given. Commodities of the World, with maps showing principal areas of production. These statistics handle all questions in regard to production of hundreds of commodities, such as pig iron, coal, petroleum, manufactured products, imports, exports, farm products; also vessel tonnage, railroad mileage and tonnage, etc., etc.

A UNIQUE DEPARTMENT

THE NEW CENSUS ATLAS OF THE WORLD contains a unique department entitled "FACTS ABOUT THE WORLD." This department shows the Principal Canals of the World and their Tonnage; Highest Mountains; Principal Seaports; Longest Rivers; Largest Lakes, Oceans and Cities; the Capitals of the World; Important Tunnels; Area of Islands; World's Strength in War Aeroplanes and Comparison of Aerial Navies; Manufactures of the United States; Chronological Outline of American History from 986 to 1911; Statistics of States; Statistics of the Cities; Governments of the District of Columbia; Past Political Completion of Various States; Party Lines in Congress since 1881; Order of Presidential Successions; Contents of Labels and Forms; Forces Service; Principal Languages of the World; Comparative Prices of Commodities; How Wireless Telegraph Works; Recent Historical Events; Inventions and Inventors; Religious Divisions of Europe and the United States, etc.

THE NEW CENSUS ATLAS OF THE WORLD contains 192 pages, printed on extra high-grade paper, bound in extra cloth with combination of blind stamping and inks. Size 11x15 inches. Weight 56 ounces.

Is Richeson to Escape Death? If So, There Should Never Be Talk of Executing Any Other Man. No Crime Viler Than His Could Be Thought Of. No Man in This Country Should Suffer the Death Penalty if HE Escapes It.

As vile, hideous, mean and cowardly a murderer as was ever born is "The Reverend" Clarence V. T. Richeson.

It would serve no good purpose to repeat the details of his dreadful crime. An unfortunate girl victim of his vicious and heartless nature was murdered by this "Reverend" hyena that he might be free to marry another and a rich woman.

Having exhausted perjury, failed in plans for a perjured alibi, and having vainly tried to fasten his crime upon another by suggestion and innuendo, the "Reverend" Richeson now confesses his crime—a confession now made worthless by the overwhelming evidence against him.

In his typical lying and hypocritical style the "Reverend" murderer declares that he confesses to save the memory of the girl he killed from painful discussion. That statement simply adds to the blackness of his crime. For in his struggles to escape conviction at first this heartless hypocrite had slandered the murdered girl and had tried to connect her memory infamously with other men.

The "Reverend" hypocrite, murderer and coward confesses now, hoping to save his worthless life from the death chair. He believes that because he has prostituted and degraded the title "Reverend" there may be some hesitancy about executing him, as a man with better pleas for mercy would be put to death.

He hopes, murderous and vile dog that he is, that his sacred calling will keep the executioner's hand off his neck.

Capital punishment is barbarous. A horrible crime is not made less dreadful and harmful when society in its turn becomes a murderer and kills the killer.

This newspaper opposes capital punishment—even for so vile a wretch as this killer of a helpless girl. It is not that he does not DESERVE death now, and eternal damnation afterwards, but that the people as a whole should not become official murderers because murder has been committed by a private individual, we oppose capital punishment under all circumstances, sickening as it is to think of this "Reverend" poisoner existing on the earth.

But, while we oppose killing by the State, we say that it is a gross libel upon Governor Foss of Massachusetts to suggest that he would commute to life imprisonment the sentence of THIS man unless it were his intention to commute similarly every sentence for murder hereafter.

It would be insulting to suggest that such a man as Governor Foss would use his power to shield this horrible monster, Richeson, and then permit another man to die for a crime infinitely less atrocious.

The power to pardon or commute is in the Governor's hands. And mercy is rarely mistaken.

But mercy in this case, unless followed by mercy still greater in EVERY MURDER CASE COMING BEFORE THE GOVERNOR HEREAFTER WOULD BE A DISGRACE TO MASSACHUSETTS, TO THE GOVERNOR AND TO ALL OF THE PEOPLE.

We say with confidence that if Governor Foss uses his power to save the worthless and vile life of this lowest of murderers he will never permit another capital punishment during his term of office. He COULD NOT do so.

No man, we suppose, will urge upon the Governor that the poisoner should go free because he preached the gospel, played the hypocrite and was called "reverend" while he carried on his plans of moral destruction and murder. That is but another reason for inflicting upon him the heaviest legal punishment.

If Richeson's sentence is to be commuted to life imprisonment WHAT MURDERER SHALL BE EXECUTED!

If Governor Foss shows mercy to this man, who cunningly and coldly poisoned a girl, waiting three days for her to swallow the poison that he had given her, what murderer can he ever punish with the death penalty?

If Governor Foss shows mercy to this cold-blooded poisoner, how much more mercy must he show to the man who kills in anger, to the man who murders in poverty and want, to the wretched criminal made ferocious by ignorance, brutality and lack of opportunity?

Richeson had education, money, opportunity. AND HE MURDERED DELIBERATELY A POOR DEFENCELESS GIRL, playing upon her trusting affection to poison her.

If Governor Foss shows mercy to this most hideous, depraved and cowardly of murderers, it MUST mean that there is to be no more capital punishment in Massachusetts while he is Governor.

Sherlocko the Monk

By GUS MAGER

Copyright, 1912, by the National News Association

MY HUSBAND HAS MYSTERIOUSLY VANISHED — I CALLED AT HIS OFFICE IN THE TOPNOTCH BUILDING TO TAKE HIM SHOPPING AND HE CAN'T BE FOUND!
YOU HAD BETTER GO HOME, MADAM, WHILE WE VISIT THE BUILDING!
YOU SAW YOUR EMPLOYER HERE TO-DAY?
SURE, I WAS TAKING DICTATION FROM HIM THERE IN HIS OFFICE WHEN HIS WIFE CALLED!
I ONLY TURNED AROUND A MOMENT TO OPEN THE DOOR FOR HIS WIFE AND HE JUST VANISHED-THAT'S ALL! SEEMS GHOSTLY TO ME, FOR THIS IS THE ONLY DOOR AND I WAS STANDING IN IT!
THAT'S THE DESK THE BOSS WAS USING!
STRANGE IT SHOULD BE CLOSED WHEN HE WAS WORKING AT IT!
VERY MYSTERIOUS
AH, YOUR BOSS WORE A DARK BLUE COAT? HAVE YOU A SPARE KEY FOR THIS DESK?
MARVELOUS
WELL, HENPECKO, YOU FORGOT THIS DESK CLOSED WITH A SPRING LOCK WHEN YOU RAN OUT TO AVOID A SHOPPING TRIP WITH YOUR WIFE.
YES, BUT I GOT OUT OF GOING WITH HER-SHE MAKES ME TRAIL AROUND THROUGH ALL THE STORES!
Gus Mager

Sherlocko the Monk, with his friend, Dr. Watso, is now a regular feature of the Sunday AMERICAN. Don't miss the funny detective work of Sherlocko in the Sunday AMERICAN.

Rev. Dr. Conrad of the Park Street Church Deserves to Be Commended for His Common Sense and Generous Christian Spirit.

The Rev. Dr. Conrad, pastor of Park Street Congregational Church, a clergyman who is recognized throughout this country as one of the ablest orators of the Congregational pulpit, deserves public commendation for his broad, sane-minded, Christian-spirited remarks made on Monday in reply to the Rev. Dr. Gifford and the other ministers who voiced objection to the action of the Ninth Regiment in voting to pay a compliment to Cardinal O'Connell by acting as his honorary escort on the day of his return to Boston.

The issue raised by Rev. Dr. Gifford and his associates is a very ugly, a very dangerous issue to bring to the surface in any part of this great nation.

Let us look at the situation, as those clergymen have brought it into public vision, and consider it in a calm, level-headed, reasonable frame of mind as becomes thinking Americans discussing any question of public interest.

Let us suppose that Bishop Lawrence, the widely respected head of the Episcopal church in Massachusetts, had been invited to go to London to receive the highest dignity in the prelacy of the Anglican church.

Would any cleric or layman, Catholic or Protestant, whose opinion is worth anything in this community, object to the First Corps of Cadets, for instance—the majority of whom are non-Catholics—tendering a guard of honor to Bishop Lawrence, either going to the dock or coming from it, should a committee of the bishop's friends see proper to invite them?

Or, suppose, the Rev. Dr. George A. Gordon of the Old South Church, loved and revered by all who know him, had been over to Scotland to receive in Edinburgh the highest honor that the sturdy churchmen of that ancient land should see fit to bestow upon him, would any cleric or layman whose opinion is worth anything in this community raise a word of protest if, upon Dr. Gordon's return, the officers and men of the Eighth Regiment, for instance—many of whom are non-Catholics—saw fit to act as a guard of honor to the popular divine?

This newspaper could poll the citizenship of Boston to-morrow and within forty-eight hours receive an overwhelming and emphatic "No" in answer to both these propositions.

Boston stands high among the cities of America in her respect for ALL religions and her toleration of every form of honest and law-abiding belief.

The clergymen who, as we believe, have ill-advisedly raised this issue, and, despite the sage counsel of Rev. Dr. Conrad, threaten to carry it forward to the Governor's chamber, should recall and pay heed to the rebuke which that splendid American Protestant statesman, the late Senator Hoar, administered some fifteen years ago, amid the applause of the entire nation, to those who then tried to re-light the fires of Smithfield and fling their blazing coals upon American soil.

The men of the Ninth Regiment have a record for American patriotism and valor, and the sacrifice which goes with both, that is not surpassed by any body of fighting men in this country.

That record was made at Cold Harbor, on Mary's Heights, on the field of blood and slaughter at Gettysburg, in the mighty struggle of the Civil War.

It was made still later, when, a few years ago, William McKinley, as President of this republic, called for troops to go into action in defence of the nation's honor against Spain—one of the oldest Catholic countries in the world—and no men answered that call more loyally or with greater alacrity than those who fill the ranks of the Ninth Regiment, ninety-five per cent. of whom, at least, are Roman Catholic in faith.

Rev. Dr. Conrad spoke honestly and with truth when he said there is nothing to condemn in the action of the Ninth Regiment acting as escort or guard of honor to Cardinal O'Connell, but that, on the contrary, there is everything to admire and to applaud.

Twenty years ago Lord Salisbury was rebuked by an association of ministers for his appointment of Sir Henry Mathew, a Roman Catholic, to the high cabinet office of Home Secretary of England. Lord Salisbury's reply to the objectors was dignified and brief. Said the English prime minister: "Gentlemen, this is the nineteenth century and not the middle ages."

We are now in the twentieth century of the world's progress and enlightenment. Day by day the fog banks of religious ill-feeling are fading and melting before the strong sunlight of toleration.

The coming home to Boston of Cardinal O'Connell will be an event for the expression of good-feeling and welcome from all good citizens of Boston, irrespective of religious belief. And this is as it should be.

Incidentally, and as a final word. It may not be amiss to draw the attention of the Rev. Dr. Gifford and his co-objectors to the fact published a few days ago in every newspaper of New York that on the occasion of Cardinal Farley's return from a similar mission as that which called Cardinal O'Connell to Rome one of the most elaborate entertainments in honor of Cardinal Farley will be a public banquet in the large dining hall of the Waldorf-Astoria at which every guest, including the toastmaster, will be a non-Catholic.

Furthermore, the Sixty-ninth Regiment of the New York National Guard is to act as a guard of honor to Cardinal Farley from the North German-Lloyd pier to the Cardinal's home.

And no word of protest has yet been sent to Albany against either the banquet or the regiment. Nor has one been even suggested.
